Subject Overview:	This subject examines the pressures of technological change on contemporary media institutions and communications practices. Students will be introduced to key debates about media convergence, the relationship between technological change and media practices, and the shift from mass communication societies to networked societies. A range of case studies drawn from different sectors of the media including photography, the music industry, television, cinema, and the Internet will be complemented by examination of emerging practices such as video games, 'culture jamming', new entertainment forms and surveillance. Students completing the subject will be able to develop a critical understanding of the forces affecting technological change, and will be able to identify the major pressures likely to shape the media-communications industries of the future.
Assessment:	A short essay of 1500 words 30% (due mid-semester), a research report of 2500 words 55% (due end of semester); a 10-minute oral presentation 5% (given in seminar) and seminar participation 10%. Students must complete all assignments and attend at least 80% of classes to be eligible for assessment. Assessment submitted late without an approved formal extension will be penalised at 2% per day. Students who fail to submit up to 2-weeks after the final due date without a formal extension and/or special consideration will receive a fail grade for the piece of assessment.
