ECON10002 Seminar in Economics and Commerce A

Dates & Locations:   2010, Parkville   This subject commences in the following study period/s: Semester 2, Parkville   Taught on campus.	Credit Points:	12.50
This subject commences in the following study period/s: Semester 2, Parfiville - Taught on campus.  Contact Hours: Two 1.5- hour seminars per week Total Time Commitment: Not available  Prerequisites:  316-101 Introductory Microeconomics (/view/2010/316-102)  Corequisites:  316-101 Introductory Microeconomics (/view/2010/316-101)  Recommended Background Knowledge:  Non Allowed Subjects:  Non Allowed Subjects:  Non Allowed Subjects:  Non Allowed Subjects:  Non Sequirements:  For the purposes of considering requests for Reasonable Adjustments under the Disability Standards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this subject are articulated in the Subject Description, Subject Objectives, Ceneric Skills and Assessment Requirements for this entry. The University is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements. Further details on the disability support scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http://www.services.unimelb.edu.au/disability/  Coordinator:  Prof Robert Dixon  Contact:  Commerce Student Centre Upper Ground Floor ICT Building 111 Barry Street The University of Melibourne Tel: +61 3 8344 5317 Toll Free: 1800 666 300 Fax: +61 3 9347 3966 Email: commerce-courseadvice@unimelb.edu.au  Subject Overview:  Classical Political Economy and Economic Liberalism The focus of the subject will be on Classical Political Economy and the inter-play of political and economic ideas. The central figures of this school, Adam Smith, Thomas Robert Malthus, David Ricardo, and Karil Max, are studied with the purpose of uncovering these ideas and assessing their relevance for the modern world. Particular emphasis is placed on relating the methods, concepts, and conclusions of the classical economists to those of modern mainstream economic theory and contemporary views on the role of the State in economic affairs. Students will be expected to read original works as well as secondary literature.  Objectives:  Information not avai	Level:	1 (Undergraduate)
Prerequisites:  316-102 Introductory Microeconomics (/view/2010/316-102)  Corequisites:  316-101 Introductory Macroeconomics (/view/2010/316-101)  Recommended Background Knowlødge:  Non Allowed Subjects:  Non Allowed Subjects:  Non Allowed Subjects:  For the purposes of considering requests for Reasonable Adjustments under the Disability Standards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this subject are articulated in the Subject Description, Subject Objectives, Generic Skills and Assessment Requirements for this instructive is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements. Further details on the disability support scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http://www.services.unimelb.edu.au/disability/  Coordinator:  Prof Robert Dixon  Contact:  Commerce Student Centre Upper Ground Floor ICT Building 111 Barry Street The University of Melbourne Tel: +61 3 9344 5317 Toll Free: 1800 666 300 Fax: +61 3 9347 3986 Email: commerce-courseadvice@unimelb.edu.au  Classical Political Economy and Economic Liberalism The focus of the subject will be on Classical Political Economy and the inter-play of political and economic ideas. The central figures of this school, Adam Smith, Thomas Robert Malthus, David Ricardo, and Karl Marx, are studied with the purpose of uncovering these ideas and assessing their relevance for the modern world. Particular emphasis is placed on relating the methods, concepts, and conclusions of the classical economists to those of modern mainstream economic theory and contemporary views on the role of the State in economic theory and contemporary views on the role of the State in economic theory and contemporary views on the role of the State in economic theory and contemporary views on the role of the State in economic theory and contemporary views on the role of the State in economic theory and contemporary views on the role of the State in economic theory and contemporary views on the role of th	Dates & Locations:	This subject commences in the following study period/s:
Corequisites:  316-101 Introductory Macroeconomics (View/2010/316-101)  Recommended Background Knowledge:  None  Core Participation Requirements:  Standards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this subject are articulated in the Subject Description, Subject Objectives, Generic Skills and Assessment Requirements for this nitry. The University is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements. Further details on the disability support scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http://www.services.unimelb.edu.au/disability/  Coordinator:  Prof Robert Dixon  Contact:  Commerce Student Centre Upper Ground Floor ICT Building 111 Barry Street The University of Melbourne Tel: +61 3 8344 5317 Toll Free: 1800 666 300 Fax: +61 3 9347 3986 Email: commerce-courseadvice@unimelb.edu.au  Subject Overview:  Classical Political Economy and Economic Liberalism The focus of the subject will be on Classical Political Economy and the inter-play of political and economic ideas. The central figures of this school, Adam Smith, Thomas Robert Malthus, David Ricardo, and Karl Marx, are studied with the purpose of uncovering these ideas and assessing their relevance for the modern world. Particular emphasis is placed on relating the methods, concepts, and conclusions of the classical economists to those of modern mainstream economic theory and contemporary views on the role of the State in economic theory and contemporary views on the role of the State in economic theory and contemporary views on the role of the State in economic theory and contemporary views on the role of the State in economic theory and contemporary views on the role of the State in economic theory and contemporary views on the role of the State in economic theory and contemporary views on the role of the State in economic theory and contemporary views on the role of the State in economic theory and contemporary views on the role of the State in economic theory and	Time Commitment:	Contact Hours: Two 1.5- hour seminars per week Total Time Commitment: Not available
Recommended Background Knowledge:  Non Allowed Subjects:  None  For the purposes of considering requests for Reasonable Adjustments under the Disability Standards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this subject are articulated in the Subject Description, Subject Objectives, Generic Skills and Assessment Requirements for this entry. The University is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements for this entry. The University is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements. Further clails on the disability support scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http://www.services.unimelb.edu.au/disability/  Coordinator:  Prof Robert Dixon  Contact:  Commerce Student Centre Upper Ground Floor ICT Building 111 Barry Street The University of Melbourne Tet: +61 3 8344 5317 Toll Free: 1800 666 300 Fax: +61 3 9347 3986 Email: commerce-courseadvice@unimelb.edu.au  Subject Overview:  Classical Political Economy and Economic Liberalism The focus of the subject will be on Classical Political Economy and the inter-play of political and economic ideas. The central figures of this school, Adam Smith, Thomas Robert Malthus, David Ricardo, and Karl Marx, are studied with the purpose of uncovering these ideas and assessing their relevance for the modern world. Particular emphasis is placed on relating the methods, concepts, and conclusions of the classical economists to those of modern mainstream economic theory and contemporary views on the role of the State in economic affairs. Students will be expected to read original works as well as secondary literature.  Objectives:  Information not available.  Assessment:  A 2-hour end-of-semester examination (50%) and assignments, essay and seminar presentations totalling not more than 5000 words (50%).  Prescribed Texts: Todd G. Buchholz and Martin Feldstein, New Ideas From Dead Economists, Penguin/Plume, 1999 OR Robert Heilbroner, The Worldly Philosophers, Touch	Prerequisites:	316-102 Introductory Microeconomics (/view/2010/316-102)
Non Allowed Subjects:  None  Core Participation Requirements:  For the purposes of considering requests for Reasonable Adjustments under the Disability Standards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvantage Policy, academic provide support to those with special requirements for this entry. The University is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements for this entry. The University is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements. Further details on the disability support scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http://www.services.unimelb.edu.au/disability/  Coordinator:  Prof Robert Dixon  Contact:  Commerce Student Centre Upper Ground Floor (CT Building 111 Barry Street The University of Melbourne Tel: +61 3 8344 5317 Toll Free: 1800 666 300 Fax: +61 3 9347 3986 Email: commerce-courseadvice@unimelb.edu.au  Subject Overview:  Classical Political Economy and Economic Liberalism The focus of the subject will be on Classical Political Economy and the inter-play of political and economic ideas. The central figures of this school, Adam Smith, Thomas Robert Malthus, David Ricardo, and Karl Marx, are studied with the purpose of uncovering these ideas and assessing their relevance for the modern world. Particular emphasis is placed on relating the methods, concepts, and conclusions of the classical economists to those of modern mainstream economic theory and contemporary views on the role of the State in economic affairs. Students will be expected to read original works as well as secondary literature.  Objectives:  Information not available.  A 2-hour end-of-semester examination (50%) and assignments, essay and seminar presentations totalling not more than 5000 words (50%).  Prescribed Texts: Todd G, Buchholz and Martin Feldstein, New Ideas From Dead Economists, Pengun/Plume, 1999 OR Robert Heilbroner, The Worldly Philosophers, Touchstone, 1999.	Corequisites:	316-101 Introductory Macroeconomics (/view/2010/316-101)
Core Participation Requirements:  For the purposes of considering requests for Reasonable Adjustments under the Disability Standards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this subject are articulated in the Subject Description, Subject Objectives, Generic Skills and Assessment Requirements for the Sisability support scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http://www.services.unimelb.edu.au/disability/  Coordinator:  Prof Robert Dixon  Contact:  Commerce Student Centre Upper Ground Floor (LT Building 111 Barry Street The University of Melbourne Tel: +61 3 8344 5317 Toll Free: 1800 666 300 Fax: +61 3 9347 3986 Email: commerce-courseadvice@unimelb.edu.au  Subject Overview:  Classical Political Economy and Economic Liberalism The focus of the subject will be on Classical Political Economy and the inter-play of political and economic ideas. The central figures of this school, Adam Smith, Thomas Robert Malthus, David Ricardo, and Karl Marx, are studied with the purpose of uncovering these ideas and assessing their relevance for the modern world. Particular emphasis is placed on relating the methods, concepts, and conclusions of the classical economists to those of modern mainstream economic theory and contemporary views on the role of the State in economic affairs. Students will be expected to read original works as well as secondary literature.  Objectives:  Information not available.  Assessment:  A 2-hour end-of-semester examination (50%) and assignments, essay and seminar presentations totalling not more than 5000 words (50%).  Prescribed Texts: Todd G. Buchholz and Martin Feldstein, New Ideas From Dead Economists, Penguin/Plume, 1999 OR Robert Heilbroner, The Worldly Philosophers, Touchstone, 1999.		Please refer to Prerequisites and Corequisites.
Standards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this subject are articulated in the Subject Description, Subject Objectives, Generic Skills and Assessment Requirements for this entry. The University is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements. Further details on the disability support scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http://www.services.unimelb.edu.au/disability/  Coordinator:  Prof Robert Dixon  Contact:  Commerce Student Centre Upper Ground Floor ICT Building 111 Barry Street The University of Melbourne Tel: +61 3 8344 5317 Toll Free: 1800 666 300 Fax: +61 3 9347 3986 Email: commerce-courseadvice@unimelb.edu.au  Subject Overview:  Classical Political Economy and Economic Liberalism  The focus of the subject will be on Classical Political Economy and the inter-play of political and economic ideas. The central figures of this school, Adam Smith, Thomas Robert Malthus, David Ricardo, and Karl Marx, are studied with the purpose of uncovering these ideas and assessing their relevance for the modern world. Particular emphasis is placed on relating the methods, concepts, and conclusions of the classical economists to those of modern mainstream economic theory and contemporary views on the role of the State in economic affairs. Students will be expected to read original works as well as secondary literature.  Objectives:  Information not available.  Assessment:  Prescribed Texts: Todd G. Buchholz and Martin Feldstein, New Ideas From Dead Economists, Penguin/Plume, 1999 OR Robert Heilbroner, The Worldly Philosophers, Touchstone, 1999.	Non Allowed Subjects:	None
Contact:  Commerce Student Centre Upper Ground Floor ICT Building 111 Barry Street The University of Melbourne Tel: +61 3 8344 5317 Toll Free: 1800 666 300 Fax: +61 3 9347 3986 Email: commerce-courseadvice@unimelb.edu.au  Subject Overview:  Classical Political Economy and Economic Liberalism The focus of the subject will be on Classical Political Economy and the inter-play of political and economic ideas. The central figures of this school, Adam Smith, Thomas Robert Malthus, David Ricardo, and Karl Marx, are studied with the purpose of uncovering these ideas and assessing their relevance for the modern world. Particular emphasis is placed on relating the methods, concepts, and conclusions of the classical economists to those of modern mainstream economic theory and contemporary views on the role of the State in economic affairs. Students will be expected to read original works as well as secondary literature.  Objectives:  Information not available.  A 2-hour end-of-semester examination (50%) and assignments, essay and seminar presentations totalling not more than 5000 words (50%).  Prescribed Texts:  Prescribed Texts: Todd G. Buchholz and Martin Feldstein, New Ideas From Dead Economists, Penguin/Plume, 1999 OR Robert Heilbroner, The Worldly Philosophers, Touchstone, 1999.  This subject is not available as a breadth subject.	-	Standards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this subject are articulated in the Subject Description, Subject Objectives, Generic Skills and Assessment Requirements for this entry. The University is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements. Further details on the disability support scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http://
Upper Ground Floor ICT Building 111 Barry Street The University of Melbourne Tel: +61 3 8344 5317 Toll Free: 1800 666 300 Fax: +61 3 9347 3986 Email: commerce-courseadvice@unimelb.edu.au  Subject Overview:  Classical Political Economy and Economic Liberalism The focus of the subject will be on Classical Political Economy and the inter-play of political and economic ideas. The central figures of this school, Adam Smith, Thomas Robert Malthus, David Ricardo, and Karl Marx, are studied with the purpose of uncovering these ideas and assessing their relevance for the modern world. Particular emphasis is placed on relating the methods, concepts, and conclusions of the classical economists to those of modern mainstream economic theory and contemporary views on the role of the State in economic affairs. Students will be expected to read original works as well as secondary literature.  Objectives:  Information not available.  Assessment:  A 2-hour end-of-semester examination (50%) and assignments, essay and seminar presentations totalling not more than 5000 words (50%).  Prescribed Texts:  Prescribed Texts: Todd G. Buchholz and Martin Feldstein, New Ideas From Dead Economists, Penguin/Plume, 1999 OR Robert Heilbroner, The Worldly Philosophers, Touchstone, 1999.  Breadth Options:  This subject is not available as a breadth subject.	Coordinator:	Prof Robert Dixon
The focus of the subject will be on Classical Political Economy and the inter-play of political and economic ideas. The central figures of this school, Adam Smith, Thomas Robert Malthus, David Ricardo, and Karl Marx, are studied with the purpose of uncovering these ideas and assessing their relevance for the modern world. Particular emphasis is placed on relating the methods, concepts, and conclusions of the classical economists to those of modern mainstream economic theory and contemporary views on the role of the State in economic affairs. Students will be expected to read original works as well as secondary literature.  Objectives:  Information not available.  A 2-hour end-of-semester examination (50%) and assignments, essay and seminar presentations totalling not more than 5000 words (50%).  Prescribed Texts:  Prescribed Texts: Todd G. Buchholz and Martin Feldstein, New Ideas From Dead Economists, Penguin/Plume, 1999 OR Robert Heilbroner, The Worldly Philosophers, Touchstone, 1999.  This subject is not available as a breadth subject.	Contact:	Upper Ground Floor ICT Building 111 Barry Street The University of Melbourne Tel: +61 3 8344 5317 Toll Free: 1800 666 300 Fax: +61 3 9347 3986
A 2-hour end-of-semester examination (50%) and assignments, essay and seminar presentations totalling not more than 5000 words (50%).  Prescribed Texts: Prescribed Texts: Todd G. Buchholz and Martin Feldstein, New Ideas From Dead Economists, Penguin/Plume, 1999 OR Robert Heilbroner, The Worldly Philosophers, Touchstone, 1999.  Breadth Options: This subject is not available as a breadth subject.	Subject Overview:	The focus of the subject will be on Classical Political Economy and the inter-play of political and economic ideas. The central figures of this school, Adam Smith, Thomas Robert Malthus, David Ricardo, and Karl Marx, are studied with the purpose of uncovering these ideas and assessing their relevance for the modern world. Particular emphasis is placed on relating the methods, concepts, and conclusions of the classical economists to those of modern mainstream economic theory and contemporary views on the role of the State in economic affairs. Students presentations totalling not more than 5000 words (50%).  Prescribed Texts: Todd G. Buchholz and Martin Feldstein, New Ideas From Dead Economists, Penguin/Plume, 1999 OR Robert Heilbroner, The Worldly Philosophers, Touchstone, 1999.  Breadth Options: This subject is not available as a breadth subject.	Objectives:	Information not available.
Penguin/Plume, 1999 OR Robert Heilbroner, The Worldly Philosophers, Touchstone, 1999.  Breadth Options:  This subject is not available as a breadth subject.	Assessment:
This subject is not available as a breadin subject.	Prescribed Texts:
Fees Information: Subject EFTSL, Level, Discipline & Census Date, http://enrolment.unimelb.edu.au/fees	Breadth Options:	This subject is not available as a breadth subject.
	Fees Information:	Subject EFTSL, Level, Discipline & Census Date, http://enrolment.unimelb.edu.au/fees

Page 1 of 2 02/02/2017 11:04 A.M.

Generic Skills:	<ul> <li># High level of development: oral communication; written communication; problem solving; interpretation and analysis; critical thinking; evaluation of data and other information; receptiveness to alternative ideas.</li> <li># Moderate level of development: collaborative learning; team work.</li> <li># Some level of development: statistical reasoning; application of theory to practice; sysnthesis of data and other information; use of computer software; accessing data and other information from a range of sources.</li> </ul>
Notes:	This subject is available to high achieving students who have completed no more than one semester of study at the University of Melbourne and a total of no more than 50 level-1 points. Selection is based on the grade average achieved across these 50 points of study at the University of Melbourne. Students who achieve an H1 average in these 50 points will be guaranteed a place. Students need to apply on line. Please note strict deadlines apply; contact the Faculty for further information.

Page 2 of 2 02/02/2017 11:04 A.M.