Subject Overview:	This subject introduces students to some of the key texts of modern and contemporary literature, across several genres: poetry, drama, the short story, the novel, and the filmscript. Modern and contemporary writers struggle with issues of representation, aesthetics and politics in an era of dramatic social change, and offer some intriguing reflections and meditations on the role of literature and the formation of literary tradition. This subject will explore the thematic and formal innovations of 20th century writing and some of the controversies and contexts of 20th century literature. Students will be encouraged to develop a critical framework for interpreting these texts in the light of current trends in literary criticism and critical theory. Students who successfully complete this subject will have a background of relevant knowledge and critical and interpretative skills on which to base further work in English Literary Studies.
Objectives:	Students who complete this subject will: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # have an understanding of some of the thematic and formal innovations as well as the controversies and contexts of early 20th century literature; # have an awareness of the relevance of recent innovations in literary-critical methodology to the study of early 20th century literature; # have acquired relevant research skills including use of the library, referencing and presentation of written work; # be able to apply flexible reading strategies and writing practices to the material studied; # have a background of relevant knowledge and methodologies, both critical and theoretical, on which to base further studies in English.
Assessment:	Written work of 4000 words comprising a text-based exercise of 800 words worth 20% (due early in semester), an essay of 1200 words worth 30% (due mid-semester) and an essay of 2000 words worth 50% (due in the examination period). Students are required to attend a minimum of nine tutorials in order to qualify to have their written work assessed. Note: Assessment submitted late without an approved formal extension will be penalised at 2% per day. Students who fail to submit up to 2-weeks after the final due date without a formal extension and/or special consideration will receive a fail grade for the piece of assessment.
