Subject Overview:	The Melbourne Law School recognises that many of its students take the opportunity to engage in significant and exciting law-related work during their time at the Law School. Legal Internship allows students to gain credit for research arising out of their work in an approved internship of at least six weeks of full-time work in an approved organisation. Students gain credit for a substantial research essay involving critical legal research and analysis on a topic developed by the student during or after their approved internship. Examples of approved internship organisations include international organisations, government departments, non-government organisations, and law reform bodies. The internship must involve substantive legal work. The student must organise, prior to obtaining approval from the Coordinator and formal enrolment in the subject, an academic staff member from the Law School to act as supervisor for the writing of the substantial research paper which forms the basis of assessment in the subject. Students may choose to combine Legal Internship with Advanced Legal Research, with approval of the coordinators of both subjects and their supervisor.
Objectives:	The aim of Legal Internship is to encourage and to recognise the initiative of students in obtaining for themselves an approved internship and to provide academic credit for self-directed legal research carried out under academic supervision. Students who complete Legal Internship should have: <ul style="list-style-type: none"># Strengthened their ability and self-confidence in legal work, derived from their real-life experience doing challenging work in an approved internship organisation;

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> # An enhanced knowledge of a particular legal area relevant to the internship; # The ability to develop, scope and write a substantial and thoughtful research essay on a topic chosen by themselves; # Increased capacity to participate in constructive public discussion about law and policy and to speak out against prejudice, injustice and the abuse of power; and # A range of new opportunities and contacts through doing an internship in a field in which they are interested.
Assessment:	One or more pieces of substantial written legal research work (totaling up to 5,000 words at least one of which pieces of work comprises 3,000 words) that are connected to the internship and authored by the intern, due the first day of the examination period of the semester following the internship (90%); Participation in the pre- and post-internship briefing and debriefing sessions (10%).
Prescribed Texts:	None.
