Subject Overview:	This subject will address anthropological issues raised by the discourse of environmentalism, exploring the diverse ways in which individuals and societies perceive and interact with their environments. Students will explore constructions of nature and culture, how people place themselves in space and in time, and how they place the things of the world in relation to themselves. Students will also address uses and limitations of 'traditional ecological knowledge', patterns of land tenure and issues of land management. Students should become familiar with the different ways people interpret their roles and responsibilities in relation to the natural world, and with the ways understandings of nature both reflect and affect how people see themselves and their society.

Objectives:	Students who successfully complete this subject will: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # have a knowledge of the range of ways people construct understandings of and organise themselves in relation to their environments. # be aware of approaches within anthropology to documenting, analysing and theorising this variation. # be able to critically discuss issues raised by the confrontation between different systems of environmental knowledge and practice.
Assessment:	Two 500 word papers (17.5% each) due during the semester, an essay outline (5%) due in week 11, and a 3000-word essay (60%) due during the examination period. This subject has a hurdle requirement of attendance at a minimum of 8 tutorials (ie. 80% of tutorials). Regular participation in tutorials is required. Assessment submitted late without an approved extension will be penalised at 10% per day. In-class tasks missed without approval will not be marked. All pieces of written work must be submitted to pass this subject.
