Subject Overview:	This subject introduces students to techniques in written communication for digital media, with a focus on publishing for the Internet and the world wide web. Students receive workshop instruction in web publishing techniques, with the aim of realising specific projects during the semester. Lectures will present students with a range of contemporary case studies demonstrating the Internet's social effects and cultural functions in order to contextualise their understanding of both Internet theory and practical communication techniques. On completion of this subject, students will have gained a broad overview of the relevant skills and sets of knowledge needed to work as professional communicators in the field of new media.
Objectives:	Students who successfully complete this subject will: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # have acquired a critical understanding of the role of professional communicators in the field of new media; # gain a practical awareness of appropriate tools and methodologies for solving problems encountered in the process of designing, constructing and evaluating Internet based publishing projects; # be able to demonstrate enhanced information literacy skills relevant to new media forms.
Assessment:	An online project equivalent to 500 words 60% (due at the end of semester); an essay of 1500 words 15% (due during the first half of semester); an essay of 2000 words 25% (due prior to the end of the semester). This subject has a minimum hurdle requirement of 75% attendance and regular participation in tutorials. Assessment submitted late without an approved extension will be penalised at 10% per day. In-class tasks missed without approval will not be marked. All pieces of written work must be submitted to pass this subject.
Prescribed Texts:	A subject reader will be available.
Breadth Options:	This subject is not available as a breadth subject.
