Subject Overview:	This subject studies the role of social movements in bringing about change in Australian society in the past half century. It considers the general issues raised by the problem of social change and political conflict. How and why do political changes occur? If social movements did not exist, would societies need to invent them? It examines the development, demands and achievements of the principal Australian social movements in the past 50 years and the reactions to them: labour, indigenous, women's, homosexual, green, multiculturalism and migrant support, anti-war and anti-globalisation. It considers also the role of the major political parties in reaction to these movements.
Objectives:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li># understand the major theoretical approaches to the study of social movements.</li> <li># express familiarity with the development and political arguments of the principal movements for change within Australian society and of the opposition to them.</li> <li># think critically about the problem of social change in the study of political science.</li> </ul>
Assessment:	An essay of 3000 words (75%) due mid-semester, and a 1000 word reflective essay (25%) during the examination period. This subject has a minimum Hurdle Requirement of 75% Tutorial attendance. Students who fail to meet this hurdle requirement will be deemed ineligible to submit the final piece of assessment or sit the final examination. Regular participation in tutorials is required. Assessment submitted late without an approved extension will be penalised at 10% per working day. In-class tasks missed without approval will not be marked. All pieces of written work must be submitted to pass this subject.
