EVSC90014 Environmental Risk Assessment

Lower: 9 (Graduate/Postgraduate) Dates & Locations: This subject is not offered in 2014. Time Commitment: Contact Hours: 24 hours lectures and 18 hours practical/tutorial sessions Total Time Commitment: 2012 Teaching Dates: 3rd November - 8th November Prerequisites: None Recommended Background Knowledge: None Recommended Background Knowledge: None Requirements: For the purposes of considering request for Reasonable Adjustments under the Disability Standards for Education (Cwft 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this entry. The University is dedicated to provide support to thous with special requirements. Printer details on subject Objectives, Generic Skills and Assessment Requirements of this entry. The University is dedicated to provide support to the subject Description, Subject Objectives, Generic Skills and Assessment Requirements of this entry. The University is dedicated to provide support to the subject to escription, Subject Overview: Subject Overview: Erwironnental risk Assessments. We outline the history and social context of risk and explore the psychology of risk perception. You will be introduced to quantitative method and adiability? Context: Erwironnental risk assessments. We outline the history and social context of risk and explore the psychology of risk perception. You will be introduced to quantitative methods. An understate and social pareital are distributed in September and a smill assessment thack is set to encourage you to be fully prepared. You will be required to complete a tak
Dates & Locations: This subject is not offered in 2014. Time Commitment: Contact Hours: 24 hours lectures and 18 hours practical/tutorial sessions Total Time Commitment: 2012 Teaching Dates: 3rd November - 8th November Prerequisites: None Corequisites: None Recommended Background Knowledge None Stackground Knowledge None Core Participation For the purposes of considering request for Reasonable Adjustments under the Disability Standards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiments quademic Disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this subject are anticulated in the Subject Description. Requirements: Subject Source (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiments generation of Disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this subject are included by the disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this subject are included in the Subject Description. Subject Overview: Email: Interruptf@ unimelb.edu.au (mailto:Intruptf@ unimelb.edu.au) Subject Overview: Environmental Risk Assessment aims to provide you with the skills to undertake and critically evaluate environmental risk assessments. We outline the history and social context of risk and social parent the game of game game and a student statistical concepts (means, medans, standard deviators, confidence intervals, basic linear regression) is an advantage. By our with the objective science of game game and a statistical concepts (means, medans, standard deviators, confidence intervals, bastartial practical report in the weeks following the course. <td>Credit Points:</td> <td>12.50</td>	Credit Points:	12.50
Time Commitment: Contact Hours: 24 hours lectures and 18 hours practical/tutorial sessions Total Time Commitment: 2012 Teaching Dates: 3rd November - 8th November Prerequisites: None Recommended Background Knowledge: None Recommended Subjects: None Requirements: Por the purposes of considering request for Reasonable Adjustments under the Disability Standards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this entry. The University is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements of this entry. The University is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements of this entry. The University is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements of this entry. The University is dedicated to provide support to the disability support scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http:// www.services.unimelb.edu.au/disability/ Subject Overview: Ervaironmental Risk Assessment aims to provide you with the skills to undertake and critically participating ingroup exercises. Subject Overview: Ervaironmental Risk Assessment. The subject is structured to develop your skills in writing reports and participating ingroup exercises. Subject Overview: Ervaironmental Risk Assessment aims to provide you with the skills to undertake and critically prepared You will be entroped to koncep, apply and assess technical and social concept of task and evaluative tools with the collect and social concept on the subject. Subject Overview: Ervaironmental Risk Assessme	Level:	9 (Graduate/Postgraduate)
Commitment: 2012 Teaching Dates: 3rd November - 8th November Prerequisites: None Corequisites: None Recommended Background Knowledge: None Recommended Background Knowledge: None Core Participation Requirements: For the purposes of considering request for Reasonable Adjustments under the Disability Standards for Education (Cwth 2006), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this subject are arciculated in the Subject Description, Subject Objectives, Generic Skills and Assessment Requirements - Lurther details, www.services.unimelb.edu.au (mailto:Irumpf@ unimelb.edu.au) Subject Overview: Email: Irumpff@ unimelb.edu.au (mailto:Irumpff@ unimelb.edu.au) Subject Overview: Environmental fisk Assessment sims to provide you will be introduced to quanittative and qualitative explore the psychology of risk perception. You will be introduced to quanittative and qualitative tools with the coljective of giving you the ability to select, apply and assess technical and socially based fisk assessment. The subject is structured to develop your skills in writing reports and participating in group exercises. While the contact perception is a sintensive days, the learning period is longer. Reading materials are distributed in September and a small assessment task is set to encourage you to be fully prepared. You will be required to complete a talk-home examination and a substantial practical report in the weeks following the course. The subject is made up of lectures is the mornings and practical exercises in the afternoons. It assumes no formal background in quantitative methods. An understanding of bas	Dates & Locations:	This subject is not offered in 2014.
Corequisites: None Recommended Background Knowledge: None Statistication Control (Control (Contro) (Contro) (Control (Control (Control (Contro) (Control (Contro)	Time Commitment:
Recommended Background Knowledge: None Nen Allowed Subjects: None Core Participation Requirements: For the purposes of considering request for Reasonable Adjustments under the Disability Standards for Education (Cwth 2006), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this subject are articulated in the Subject Description, Subject Objectives, Generic Skills and Assessment Requirements. Further details on the disability support scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http:// www.services.unimelb.edu.au/disability/ Subject Overview: Environmental Risk Assessment aims to provide you with the skills to undertake and critically evaluate environmental risk assessments. We outline the history and social context of risk and explore the psychology of risk perception. You Will be introduced to quantitative and qualitative tools with the objective of giving you the ability to select, apply and assess technical and socially based risk assessment. The subject is structured to develop your skills in writing reports and participating in group exercises. While the contact bio complete a tak-home examination and a substantial practical report in the weeks following the course. The subject is made up of lectures in the mornings and practical exercises in the afternoons. It assumes no formal background in quantitative methods. An understanding of basic statistical concepts (means, medians, standard deviations, confidence intervals, basic linear regression) is an advantage. If you have not been involved in an undergraduate statistics class before, contac Dr Terry Walshe to discuss your options. Learning Outcomes: At the completion of the subject, participants should be able to: # Describe approaches to risk assessment in vario	Prerequisites:	None
Background Knowledge: None Core Participation Requirements: For the purposes of considering request for Reasonable Adjustments under the Disability Standards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this subject are articulated in the Subject Description, Subject Objectives, Generic Skills and Assessment Requirements. Further details on the disability support scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http:// www.services.unimelb.edu.au/disability/ Contact: Email: Irumpf@unimelb.edu.au/disability/ evaluate environmental Risk Assessments. We outline the history and social context of risk and explore the psychology of risk perception. You will be introduced to quantitative and qualitative tools with the objective of giving you the ability to select, apply and assess technical and socially based risk assessment. The subject is structured to develop your skills in write profs and participating in group exercises. Learning Outcomes: At the completion of the subject is structure in the mornings and practical exercises in the affermoons. It assumes no formal background in quantitative methods. An understanding of basic statistical concepts (means, medians, standard deviations, confidence intervals, basic linear regression) is an advantage. If you have not been involved in an undergraduate statistics diass before, contact if Describe approaches to risk assessment in various disciplines; # Discusts he relevance of a range of sciencific disciplines is environmental risk assessment including empirical doservation and analysis, modelling, and use of experion), and # Judge the metri of scientific arguments based on null hypothesis significance testing. At the completion of the subject, participants should be a	Corequisites:	None
Core Participation Requirements: For the purposes of considering request for Reasonable Adjustments under the Disability Standards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this subject are articulated in the Subject Description, Subject Objectives, Generic Stills and Assessment Requirements of this entry. The University is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements. Further details on the disability support scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http:// www.services.unimelb.edu.au/disability/ Contact: Email: Irumpff@unimelb.edu.au (mailto:Irumpff@unimelb.edu.au) Subject Overview: Environmental Risk Assessments arisms to provide you with the skills to undertake and critically evaluate environmental risk assessments. We outline the history and social context of risk and explore the psychology of risk perception. You will be introduced to quantitative tools with the objective of giving you the ability to select, apply and assess technical and socially based risk assessment. The subject is structured to develop your skills in writing reports and participating in group exercises. While the contact period is is intensive days, the learning period is longer. Reading materials are distributed in September and a small assessment task is set to encourage you to be fully prepared. You will be required to complete a take-home examination and a substantial practical export in the weeks following the course. The subject is made up of lectures in the mornings and practical exercises in the afternoons. It assumes no formal background in quantitative methods. An understanding of basic statistic concepts (means, medians, standard deviations, confidence intervals, basic linear regression) is an advantage. If you have not been involved in an undergraduate statistics class before,	Recommended Background Knowledge:	None
Requirements: Standards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this subject are articulated in the Subject Description, Subject Objectives, Generic Skills and Assessment Requirements. Further details on the disability support scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http:// www.services.unimelb.edu.au/disability/ Contact: Email: Irumpff@unimelb.edu.au (mailto:Irumpff@unimelb.edu.au) Subject Overview: Environmental risk assessment aims to provide you with the skills to undertake and critically evaluate environmental risk assessments. We outline the history and social context of risk and explore the psychology of risk perception. You will be introduced to quantitative and qualitative tols with the objective of giving you the ability to select.apply and assess technical and socially based risk assessment. The subject is structured to develop your skills in writing reports and participating in group exercises. While the contact period is six intensive days, the learning period is longer. Reading materials are distributed in September and a small assessment task is set to encourage you to be fully prepared. You will be required to complete a take-home examination and a substantial practical report in the weeks following the course. The subject is made up of lectures in the mornings and practical exercises in the aftermons. It advantage. If you have not been involved in an undergraduate statistics class before, contac Dr Terry Walshe to discuss your options. Learning Outcomes: At the completion of the subject, participants should be able to: # Describe approaches to risk assessment in various disciplines; # Discuss the relevance of a range of scientific disciplines to environmental risk assessments including empirical observation and	Non Allowed Subjects:	None
Email: Irumpit @ unimelb.edu.au (mainto:irumpit @ unimelb.edu.au) Subject Overview: Environmental Risk Assessment aims to provide you with the skills to undertake and critically evaluate environmental risk assessments. We outline the history and social context of risk and explore the psychology of risk perception. You will be introduced to quantitative and qualitative tools with the objective of giving you the ability to select, apply and assess technical and socially based risk assessment. The subject is structured to develop your skills in writing reports and participating in group exercises. While the contact period is six intensive days, the learning period is longer. Reading materials are distributed in September and a small assessment task is set to encourage you to be fully prepared. You will be required to complete a take-home examination and a substantial practical report in the weeks following the course. The subject is made up of lectures in the mornings and practical exercises in the afternoons. It assumes no formal background in quantitative methods. An understanding of basic statistical concepts (means, medians, standard deviations, confidence intervals, basic linear regression) is an advantage. If you have not been involved in an undergraduate statistics class before, contact Dr Terry Walshe to discuss your options. Learning Outcomes: At the completion of the subject, participants should be able to: # Describe approaches to risk assessment in various disciplines; # Discuss the relevance of a range of scientific disciplines to environmental risk assessments including empirical observation and analysis, modelling, and use of expert opinion; and # Judge the merit of scientific arguments based on null hypothesis significance testing.	Core Participation Requirements:	Standards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this subject are articulated in the Subject Description, Subject Objectives, Generic Skills and Assessment Requirements of this entry. The University is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements. Further details on the disability support scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http://
Learning Outcomes: At the completion of the subject, participants should be able to: # Described Texts: None. Breadth Options: You are required to complete an application of the methods to a real, work-based problem. Assessment: You are required to complete an application of the methods to a real, work-based problem. Assessment: You are required to complete an application of the methods to a real, work-based problem. Assessment: None. Breadth Options: This subject is not available as a breadth subject.	Contact:	Email: Irumpff@unimelb.edu.au (mailto:Irumpff@unimelb.edu.au)
Active completion of the subject, participants should be able to. # Describe approaches to risk assessment in various disciplines; # Discuss the relevance of a range of scientific disciplines to environmental risk assessment including ecology, toxicology, epidemiology, statistics, psychology and sociology; # Analyse the role of different evidentiary approaches to supporting risk assessments including empirical observation and analysis, modelling, and use of expert opinion; and # Judge the merit of scientific arguments based on null hypothesis significance testing. Assessment: You are required to complete an application of the methods to a real, work-based problem. A report from this work is worth 50% of the mark. The balance is made up of 10% for a short assignment and 40% for a three-hour examination. Prescribed Texts: None. Breadth Options: This subject is not available as a breadth subject.	Subject Overview:	 evaluate environmental risk assessments. We outline the history and social context of risk and explore the psychology of risk perception. You will be introduced to quantitative and qualitative tools with the objective of giving you the ability to select, apply and assess technical and socially based risk assessment. The subject is structured to develop your skills in writing reports and participating in group exercises. While the contact period is six intensive days, the learning period is longer. Reading materials are distributed in September and a small assessment task is set to encourage you to be fully prepared. You will be required to complete a take-home examination and a substantial practical report in the weeks following the course. The subject is made up of lectures in the mornings and practical exercises in the afternoons. It assumes no formal background in quantitative methods. An understanding of basic statistical concepts (means, medians, standard deviations, confidence intervals, basic linear regression) is an advantage. If you have not been involved in an undergraduate statistics class before, contact
A report from this work is worth 50% of the mark. The balance is made up of 10% for a short assignment and 40% for a three-hour examination. Prescribed Texts: None. Breadth Options: This subject is not available as a breadth subject.	Learning Outcomes:	 # Describe approaches to risk assessment in various disciplines; # Discuss the relevance of a range of scientific disciplines to environmental risk assessment including ecology, toxicology, epidemiology, statistics, psychology and sociology; # Analyse the role of different evidentiary approaches to supporting risk assessments including empirical observation and analysis, modelling, and use of expert opinion; and
Breadth Options: This subject is not available as a breadth subject.	Assessment:	A report from this work is worth 50% of the mark. The balance is made up of 10% for a short
	Prescribed Texts:	None.
Fees Information: Subject EFTSL, Level, Discipline & Census Date, http://enrolment.unimelb.edu.au/fees	Breadth Options:	This subject is not available as a breadth subject.
	Fees Information:	Subject EFTSL, Level, Discipline & Census Date, http://enrolment.unimelb.edu.au/fees

Related Course(s):	Master of Science (Geography)
Related Majors/Minors/ Specialisations:	Climate Change Climate Change Conservation and Restoration Development Development Education Education Energy Efficiency Modelling and Implementation Energy Efficiency Modelling and Implementation Energy Studies Energy Studies Energy Studies Environmental Science Environmental Science Integrated Water Catchment Management Integrated Water Catchment Management Public Health Public Health Sustainable Forests Sustainable Forests Tailored Specialisation Tailored Specialisation Waste Management