Subject Overview:	In this subject, students further extend their competencies in writing, reading, speaking and listening by engaging with authentic texts and situations. Students will engage with authentic texts that deal with past and present themes of increasing complexity and that are of significance in German-speaking Europe. Feature and documentary film, opinion writing, pop songs and interviews are some of the genres students will encounter and that will provide the inspiration for personal expression of a moderate level of sophistication. The acquisition of advanced linguistic structures such as the subjunctive and passive will enable students to begin to express with more complexity their own experiences, wishes and views. They will begin to understand written German at a more formal level (such as newspaper reports). Students will make first attempts to deploy these structures in written form and verbal utterances that engage with personal and political themes such as coming of age, the GDR past and racism and immigration. On completion of the subject students should have attained a moderate level of complexity in speaking, aural comprehension, reading and writing of German.
Learning Outcomes:	At the end of this subject students will be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # use a wider range of vocabulary about historical and contemporary themes; # use more complex grammatical structures including a greater range of tenses and cases, the subjunctive and the passive to express opinions, desires and intentions; # to improve their comprehension of more complex aural genres in feature and documentary film and extend their abilities to express themselves in broader social and political contexts; # to develop their reading skills with more complex texts and to practice and augment accurate writing skills; # engage with contemporary and historical themes in the German national consciousness.
