Subject Overview:	This subject examines the role of language in computer-mediated communication (CMC). It introduces students to a range of theoretical issues, with reference to both interpersonal and group interactions, and discusses distinctive research methodologies that are associated with CMC. In this subject, we see the Internet as an interactive medium of communication as we explore how CMC operates in diverse social, cultural and linguistic areas. We cover topics that include language expression, online relationships, virtual worlds, CMC discourse and second language learning.
Learning Outcomes:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li># Be familiar with the social, cultural and linguistic issues of computer-mediated communication.</li> <li># Gain experience using CMC tools that utilise different modes of communication.</li> <li># Be able to understand how technical mediation affects language use and discourse.</li> <li># Better able to understand complex interplays between language use and online communication.</li> </ul>
Assessment:	Two written class papers of 1000 words due during semester (25% each) and a written class paper of 2000 words (50%) due at the end of the semester. This subject has the following hurdle requirements: Regular participation in tutorials is required with a minimum of 75% attendance. All pieces of written work must be submitted to pass this subject. Assessment submitted late without an approved extension will be penalised at 10% per day and in-class tasks missed without approval will not be marked.
