Course Overview:	The Master of Public Administration is the flagship degree of the Melbourne School of Government. An inter-disciplinary and globally-focused degree, the MPA is for those professional who work with, and within, governments in Australia, the region, and around the world. The MPA draws on the expertise across the University of Melbourne to develop the skills and competencies of professionals who operate in increasingly complex governing environments where challenges cut across disciplinary, organisational, sectoral, jurisdictional and geographical boundaries. The MPA focuses on the role of managers and administrators and offers participants the opportunity to combine disciplinary expertise in political science, law, and economics and professional expertise in areas such as decision making, media and communication management, ethics, project management, strategic management, leadership and negotiation. Participants will mix theory and practice to address the complex challenges of management in practice through an interactive learning experience, combining individual and team-based learning opportunities that allow them to explore a range of contemporary issues. All participants undertake an internship or research project as part of the Melbourne MPA to apply their learning in an individual or team-based experience. In the 150 point MPA, participants choose an elective in consultation with the MPA Director to enable them to explore professional and intellectual interests and to ensure the requisite background for study across the faculties at the University of Melbourne. Drawing on the broader expertise at The University of Melbourne, the MPA offers participants access to a series of master classes with world-leading practitioners and scholars to supplement and extend their intellectual and professional interests.
Learning Outcomes:	The Master of Public Administration will develop future managers and leaders who work within, or with governments in Australia, the region, and across the world. The course will provide a unique learning experience for participants who will develop discipline and interdisciplinary expertise, and hone their professional skills through an interactive approach. Participants will work individually and in teams to address managerial challenges, explore contemporary issues of administration, and reflect on their professional practice. The objectives of the course are to develop adaptive and reflective practitioners who are equipped to address challenges in practice, who can appreciate the complex interconnected world they operate in, from a variety of perspectives, and devise means of addressing these challenges through combining theory and practice in a meaningful way. The 200 point program allows students the opportunity to enhance their educational experience through and additional four elective subjects that can be taken across various faculties at the University of Melbourne. This enables for either additional depth in a particular aspect of the degree, or for breadth across a range of dimensions of the program.
