Subject Overview:	Using Evidence is one of the core subjects in the Melbourne Master of Public Administration. The Melbourne MPA is an interdisciplinary, globally-focused degree program for managers that work within or with government. This subject is one of three professionally-oriented subjects and it builds on the World of Public Administration and the core discipline subjects to develop the professional skills of participants with a particular focus on using evidence in managerial practice. This subject will explore the issues of evidence construction and use in practice, allowing participants to reflect on their professional experience and develop their ability to be 'smart consumers' of information in a professional setting. It will explore how evidence is created, by whom, and for what purpose, exposing participants to the ongoing debates regarding evidence-based policy-making, data-driven decision-making, and, more broadly, the creation of knowledge. It will place a particular emphasis on the complex relationship between scientific advancement and the challenges this poses to policy makers and public managers.
Learning Outcomes:	Students who successfully complete this subject will: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li># Understand the nature of evidence, its foundation, and how it is created;</li> <li># Acquire knowledge of the social, theoretical, historical and disciplinary bases of evidence and how this impacts on decision making during the managerial, policy design and implementation phases;</li> <li># Develop a deep understanding of the skills and capabilities required to meet contemporary management practice;</li> <li># Appreciate how to apply new skills and capabilities in decision making to managerial practice.</li> </ul>
