POLS90023 International Governance and Law

Dates & Locations: This subject is not offered in 2014. Time Commitment: Contact Hours: A 2-hour seminar per week. Repeat seminars will be scheduled subject enrolments. Total Time Commitment: 120 hours Prerequisites: Admission to the Master of International Relations (MIR) Recommended Background Knowledge: None
Time Commitment: Contact Hours: A 2-hour seminar per week. Repeat seminars will be scheduled subject enrolments. Total Time Commitment: 120 hours Admission to the Master of International Relations (MIR) Corequisites: None Recommended Background Knowledge: None Core Participation Requirements: For the purposes of considering request for Reasonable Adjustments under the disabiliting Standards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvante Policy, academic requirements for this subject are articulated in the Subject Description is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements. Further details on the disability support scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http://www.services.unimelb.edu.au/disability/ Contact: Dr Adam Berryman: adamjb@unimelb.edu.au (mailto:adamjb@unimelb.edu.au) Dr. Avery Poole: adpoole@unimelb.edu.au (mailto:adamjb@unimelb.edu.au) Subject Overview: This subject provides an advanced introduction to the history, theory, institutions and printernational governance and law. The subject will provide students with a broad unders of the evolution of the international system of states, the development of diplomacy, the evolution of the international system of states, the development of diplomacy, the evolution of international law (including the role of both soft & hard law), the changing for and practice of multilateralism and the emergence of non-state or hybrid forms of power authority. Key challenges in global governance; the role of non-state actors and society; and the challenge of democratising global governance; the role of non-state actors and society; and the challenge of coordinating and harmonising an increasingly dense netwer international organisations and international regime and regimes. Certain Outcomes: On completion of this subject students should: # Develop a critical understanding of the relationship between international politics and international law; # Develop an understanding of the relationship b
Prerequisites: Admission to the Master of International Relations (MIR) Corequisites: None Recommended Background Knowledge: None For the purposes of considering request for Reasonable Adjustments under the disability Standards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvants Policy, academic requirements for this subject are articulated in the Subject Description Subject Objectives, Generic Skills and Assessment Requirements of this entry. The Univ is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements ruther details on the disability support scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http://www.services.unimelb.edu.au/disability/ Contact: Dr Adam Berryman: adamjb@unimelb.edu.au (mailto:adamjb@unimelb.edu.au) Dr. Avery Poole: adpoole@unimelb.edu.au (mailto:adamjb@unimelb.edu.au) Subject Overview: This subject provides an advanced introduction to the history, theory, institutions and printernational governance and law. The subject will provide students with a broad unders of the evolution of international law (including the role of both soft & hard law), the changing for multilateralism and the emergence of non-state or hybrid forms of power authority. Key challenges in global governance will be critically explored, including the inglobalisation on the political autonomy of states; the future of multilateralism; the account representativeness and legitimacy of international organisations and international regiment the challenge of democratising global governance; the role of non-state actors and society; and the challenge of coordinating and harmonising an increasingly dense network associated with international governance and international law; Develop a critical understanding of the key issues, challenges, actors, and institution associated with international governance and international politics and international law; Develop a critical understanding of the main theories of global governance;
Corequisites: None Recommended Background Knowledge: None For the purposes of considering request for Reasonable Adjustments under the disability standards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvante Policy, academic requirements for this subject are articulated in the Subject Description Subject Objectives, Generic Skills and Assessment Requirements of this entry. The Unix is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements. Further details on the disability support scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http://www.services.unimelb.edu.au/disability/ Contact: Dr Adam Berryman: adamjb@unimelb.edu.au (mailto:adamjb@unimelb.edu.au) Dr. Avery Poole: adpoole@unimelb.edu.au (mailto:adamjb@unimelb.edu.au) Subject Overview: This subject provides an advanced introduction to the history, theory, institutions and printernational governance and law. The subject will provide students with a broad unders of the evolution of the international system of states, the development of diplomacy, the evolution of international law (including the role of both soft & hard law), the changing for and practice of multilateralism and the emergence of non-state or hybrid forms of power authority. Key challenges in global governance will be critically explored, including the rile globalisation on the political autonomy of states; the future of multilateralism; the accour representativeness and legitimacy of international organisations and international regim and the challenge of democratising global governance, the role of non-state actors and society; and the challenge of coordinating and harmonising an increasingly dense network international organisations and regimes. Learning Outcomes: On completion of this subject students should: # Develop a critical understanding of the key issues, challenges, actors, and institution associated with international governance and international law; # Develop a critical understanding of the main theories of global governance;	io
None None
Non Allowed Subjects: None
Core Participation Requirements: For the purposes of considering request for Reasonable Adjustments under the disabilit Standards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvante Policy, academic requirements for this subject are articulated in the Subject Description Subject Objectives, Generic Skills and Assessment Requirements of this entry. The Unix is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements. Further details on the disability support scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http:// www.services.unimelb.edu.au/disability/ Contact: Dr Adam Berryman: adamjb@unimelb.edu.au (mailto:adamjb@unimelb.edu.au) Dr. Avery Poole: adpoole@unimelb.edu.au (mailto:adamjb@unimelb.edu.au) Subject Overview: This subject provides an advanced introduction to the history, theory, institutions and pr international governance and law. The subject will provide students with a broad unders of the evolution of international law (including the role of both soft hard law), the changing for and practice of multilateralism and the emergence of non-state or hybrid forms of power authority. Key challenges in global governance will be critically explored, including the ir globalisation on the political autonomy of states; the future of multilateralism; the account representativeness and legitimacy of international organisations and international regim and the challenge of democratising global governance; the role of non-state actors and society; and the challenge of coordinating and harmonising an increasingly dense networe international organisations and regimes. Con completion of this subject students should: # Develop a critical understanding of the key issues, challenges, actors, and institution associated with international governance and international politics and international law; # Develop a critical understanding of the main theories of global governance;
Standards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvanta Policy, academic requirements for this subject are articulated in the Subject Description Subject Objectives, Generic Skills and Assessment Requirements of this entry. The Unit is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements. Further details on the disability support scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http://www.services.unimelb.edu.au/disability/ Contact: Dr Adam Berryman: adamjb@unimelb.edu.au (mailto:adamjb@unimelb.edu.au) Dr. Avery Poole: adpoole@unimelb.edu.au (mailto:adamjb@unimelb.edu.au) This subject provides an advanced introduction to the history, theory, institutions and printernational governance and law. The subject will provide students with a broad unders of the evolution of the international system of states, the development of diplomacy, the evolution of international law (including the role of both soft & hard law), the changing for and practice of multilateralism and the emergence of non-state or hybrid forms of power authority. Key challenges in global governance will be critically explored, including the inglobalisation on the political autonomy of states; the future of multilateralism; the accour representativeness and legitimacy of international organisations and international regim and the challenge of democratising global governance; the role of non-state actors and society; and the challenge of coordinating and harmonising an increasingly dense network international organisations and regimes. Con completion of this subject students should: # Develop a critical understanding of the key issues, challenges, actors, and institution associated with international governance and international law; # Develop an understanding of the relationship between international politics and international law; # Develop a critical understanding of the main theories of global governance;
Dr. Avery Poole: adpoole@unimelb.edu.au (mailto:adpoole@unimelb.edu.au) Dr. Avery Poole: adpoole@unimelb.edu.au (mailto:adpoole@unimelb.edu.au) This subject provides an advanced introduction to the history, theory, institutions and printernational governance and law. The subject will provide students with a broad unders of the evolution of the international system of states, the development of diplomacy, the evolution of international law (including the role of both soft & hard law), the changing for and practice of multilateralism and the emergence of non-state or hybrid forms of power authority. Key challenges in global governance will be critically explored, including the inglobalisation on the political autonomy of states; the future of multilateralism; the account representativeness and legitimacy of international organisations and international regiment and the challenge of democratising global governance; the role of non-state actors and society; and the challenge of coordinating and harmonising an increasingly dense network international organisations and regimes. Develop a critical understanding of the key issues, challenges, actors, and institution associated with international governance and international law; # Develop an understanding of the relationship between international politics and international law; # Develop a critical understanding of the main theories of global governance;	ige international governance and law. The subject will provide students with a broad unders of the evolution of the international system of states, the development of diplomacy, the evolution of international law (including the role of both soft & hard law), the changing for and practice of multilateralism and the emergence of non-state or hybrid forms of power authority. Key challenges in global governance will be critically explored, including the ir globalisation on the political autonomy of states; the future of multilateralism; the accour representativeness and legitimacy of international organisations and international regime and the challenge of democratising global governance; the role of non-state actors and society; and the challenge of coordinating and harmonising an increasingly dense network international organisations and regimes. Con completion of this subject students should: # Develop a critical understanding of the key issues, challenges, actors, and institution associated with international governance and international law; # Develop an understanding of the relationship between international politics and international law; # Develop a critical understanding of the main theories of global governance;
Develop a critical understanding of the key issues, challenges, actors, and institution associated with international governance and international law; # Develop an understanding of the relationship between international politics and international law; # Develop a critical understanding of the main theories of global governance;	rm and npact of ttability, es civil
governance.	ns
Assessment: 2 x 1000 word briefing papers (20% each) due throughout the semester, and a 3000 word 60%) due during the examination period. Hurdle Requirement: Students are required to a minimum of 75% of classes in order to qualify to have their written work assessed. Reparticipation in class is required. Assessment submitted late without an approved extens will be penalised at 10% per working day. In-class tasks missed without approval will no marked. All pieces of written work must be submitted to pass this subject.	attend gular gular sion
Prescribed Texts: A Reading Pack will be available for purchase from the University Bookshop.
Breadth Options: This subject is not available as a breadth subject.

Page 1 of 2 01/02/2017 6:08 P.M.

Fees Information:	Subject EFTSL, Level, Discipline & Census Date, http://enrolment.unimelb.edu.au/fees
Generic Skills:	On completion of this subject students should: # Apply research skills and critical methods to a field of inquiry; # Develop persuasive arguments on a given topic; # Communicate oral and written arguments and ideas effectively; # Develop cross-cultural understanding.
Notes:	This subject is a compulsory component of the Master of International Relations course. It is also compulsory in the Master of International Politics 100-point program (teach out) and the Master of Arts International Politics (ASST) for those students who have not completed 166-502.
Related Majors/Minors/ Specialisations:	100 Point Master of International Relations 200 Point Master of International Relations International Politics

Page 2 of 2 01/02/2017 6:08 P.M.