Subject Overview:	This subject combines historical and theoretical analysis of topics in international relations from the end of World War II to the "war on terror". Topics examined may include how policymakers apply the "lessons" of history; the causes and consequences of wars; the role of international organizations and non-state actors; and transnational cultural, environmental, and economic flows. We look at how the political, military, economic, and cultural dimensions of international relations have changed since World War II, and examine key events such as the Cold War and key developments such as the rise of human rights.
Assessment:	Two 1000 word assignments 25% each (due over the course of the semester), a 3000 word assignment 50% (due at the end of semester). Students must attend the seminars to be eligible for assessment.
