Course Overview:	The masters degree is designed for students to develop advanced skills in carrying out independent and sustained research in Computer-Assisted Language Learning (CALL). The thesis should demonstrate a critical application of specialist knowledge and make an independent contribution to existing scholarship in the area of research. Candidates may advance to the Doctor of Philosophy degree after successful completion of the masters or may apply to convert to the PhD at an earlier stage. An honours grade of at least H2B (70%) must be attained to qualify for the award of the masters degree.
Objectives:	Students who complete the masters will: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li># complete an original piece of research demonstrating a specialist understanding of the subject being studied and an awareness of the latest research directions and methods in CALL;</li> <li># demonstrate the capacity to design and supervise the development of CALL environments in educational settings;</li> <li># research and evaluate implementations involving the use of computers in the service of language learning.</li> </ul>
