Subject Overview:	This subject provides a balance in skills based training with applied personal creativity by teaching the skills required to research, design, construct and publish a functional and aesthetically pleasing web site. Students who complete this subject successfully will be competent in all aspects of the process, including negotiating the brief and writing up the web site concept, content research and selection, site structure and navigation, image manipulation, screen layout, building interactivity, and use of animation, data forms, and other more advanced techniques. Students will have a critical understanding of the principles that differentiate well-designed and constructed web sites from those that are not, and will have a critical understanding of the strengths and limitations of the web as a media form.
Objectives:	Students who successfully complete this course will <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # gain an understanding of how to purposefully and effectively access and retrieve information from the Internet, and to assess the veracity of that information; # acquire skills in project management; # acquire skills in web-site design; # demonstrate skills in the use of web editing and authoring software; # have an awareness of the strength and limitations of the internet in a variety of contexts.
Assessment:	A web site concept 10% (due early in the semester), design 10% (due in the first half of semester), final web site 60% (due during the examination period), a continuous demonstration of technical skills 10% (due throughout the semester), and written work reflecting a knowledge of web site design 10% (due during the examination period). A hurdle requirement of 80% attendance is required.
