Subject Overview:	Theodor Adorno has famously stated that writing poetry after the Holocaust is a barbaric act. This subject examines the very crisis of representation that has been brought about by the Holocaust for different generations of German and Austrian writers and filmmakers from the immediate post-war period until today. The main focus of the course will be on questions of memory (and forgetting), which run like a thread through all works of Vergangenheitsbewältigung, i.e. coming to terms with the past. Theories of memory will also allow students to explore how the different subject position of the writers and filmmakers in question informed their exploration of the topic.
Objectives:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li># be familiar with German-language literary texts and films, which are concerned with the representation of the Holocaust from the 1940s until today;</li> <li># have an understanding of relevant theories of memory and literature to further their understanding of the topic.</li> <li>#</li> </ul>
Assessment:	A team project consisting of 1000 word written assignment and 10 minute oral presentation 20%, a written mid-semester assignment of 1,000 words 20%, and 3,000 word essay due at the end of semester (60%). Attendance at 75% of tutorials is a hurdle requirement in this subject.
