Subject Overview:	This is a special subject for students who wish to complete courses at the biennial Australian Linguistics Institute (ALI), organized by the Australian Linguistics Society and offering a diverse range of advanced short courses. Students must attend either two 2-week advanced level courses, or four 1-week courses (depending on how the Institute is organized). They will then select a project topic from the list provided by the ALI course presenter. On return from ALI they will complete the intensive reading and other work requirements; assessment of the resultant project will then be completed by staff of the Linguistics and Applied Linguistics Discipline.
