Subject Overview:	Contemporary online services, such as social networking and multimedia sharing sites, massively multiplayer online games, as well as commerce services are built on content management systems and underlying databases. In this subject, students will learn how to build their own domain-specific content management system, combining web technologies with database technologies. Topics include: collection, modelling and retrieval of information in databases; query languages including SQL; integration of databases with websites; web interfaces; data interchange using XML; transactions; and a selection of advanced topics in data management.
Objectives:	On completion of this subject students should be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # demonstrate proficiency in solving practical data modelling tasks; # design content management systems using relational database techniques; # use SQL to interact with a relational database; # develop a web-based database application; # understand transaction-based data processing.
Assessment:	Project work during semester, expected to take about 36 hours (30%); a mid-semester test (10%); and a 2-hour end-of-semester written examination (60%). To pass the subject, students must obtain at least 50% overall, 15/30 in project work, and 35/70 in the mid-semester test and end-of-semester written examination combined.
