Subject Overview:	This subject is a study of Kant's explanation of and arguments for transcendental idealism in The Critique of Pure Reason. It examines the arguments that space, time and the categories, together with the transcendental unity of apperception, are the conditions of experience. How the conditions provide the basis for knowledge of the world will be discussed. In the process the role of imagination in experience will be considered. On completion of this subject, students should have a detailed knowledge of the Critique, understand Kant's philosophy in relation to his predecessors, and demonstrate an ability to critically examine philosophical theses and arguments.
Objectives:	Students who successfully complete this subject will <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # have a detailed knowledge of Kant's Critique of Pure Reason; # be able to understand Kant's philosophy in relation to its predecessors; # be able to explicate Kant's major arguments; # appreciate the basis and force of the different interpretations of Kant.
Assessment:	A written assignment of 2000 words 50% (due mid-semester), a 2-hour closed-book written examination 47% (due at the end of semester) and tutorial participation 3%.
