Subject Overview:	How has sexual identity and practice been understood, represented and expressed from the late 19th to the present? This subject will analyse these themes with particular attention to theories of sexuality from the sexologists to Freud, feminism and queer theory. It will also explore the history of heterosexuality, bisexuality, transvestism, and gay and lesbian movements. On completion of this subject, students should understand the ways in which sexuality both has a history, and is contested.
Objectives:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> # understand the ways in which sexual identity is historically constructed. # understand how feminist debates have theorised the intersection between sexuality, race, class and gender. # be able to use bibliographical and research skills to locate and gather information. # be able to reflect critically on the ways in which meanings of sexuality are historically constructed.
Assessment:	A research essay of 2500 words 50% (due mid semester) and a reflective essay of 1500 words 40% (due end of semester). Tutorial participation 10%. Hurdle requirement: students must attend a minimum of 75% of tutorials in order to pass this subject.
