Subject Overview:	This seminar critically examines the scholarly phenomenon of postcolonialism in relation to the recovery and writing of Indigenous and colonised histories, and the related political struggles of Indigenous peoples around the world. The seminar will be an introduction to debates within the body of postcolonial and Indigenous studies scholarship with a focus on measuring the significance and implications of colonial pasts on the practice, methodologies and theories of historical scholarship. Through case studies of postcolonial and Indigenous histories, the seminar will encourage students to think and write critically on the political implications for Indigenous and colonised peoples of current scholarly and historical debates.
Objectives:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li># understand or be familiar with the complexities of relations between Indigenous peoples and society and government.</li> <li># show a critical awareness of the contemporary political significance of the colonial past, and an understanding of the shared and distinctive meanings of key issues in Indigenous politics and histories.</li> <li># understand or be familiar with a comparative understanding of Australian Indigenous issues in the context of an international framework of Indigenous struggle.</li> </ul>
