Subject Overview:	This subject provides students with an introduction to the actors, institutions, dynamics and key debates that make up international politics. It equips students to "go behind the news" of world affairs and understand the deeper structural and political changes and challenges confronting states, citizens and non-state actors in our increasingly interconnected world. Topics covered include the United Nations, the changing nature of war, terrorism, nuclear proliferation, great power rivalry and American power, human rights, humanitarian intervention, trade liberalisation and its critics, global inequality, climate change, and the refugee crisis. The topics will be used to demonstrate the relevance of competing theories of international politics, including realism, liberalism and critical theories (such as Marxism and feminism) against the background of the shift from the Cold War to the post-Cold War period.
Objectives:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> # become acquainted with a range of important issues in international politics. # develop analytical and critical capacities, and an ability to apply these to contemporary issues of global importance. # achieve a basic grounding in the major conceptual frameworks in the area of international politics.
Assessment:	An essay of 1000 words (25%) due mid-semester, an essay of 2000 words (50%) due at the end of semester, and a take-home exam of 1000 words (25%) due during the examination period.
