Subject Overview:	This subject explores the musical traditions of Spanish-speaking Latin America, focusing on the intersections of music, culture and language. A number of selected musical traditions will be examined including expressions from the Caribbean, Andean and River Plate regions such as Cuban son, Argentine tango, protest song and art music, among others. These repertoires will be approached from a twofold perspective, concentrating on the different musical genres and their original cultural contexts, as well as critically examining their representations in mainstream Western culture through an analysis of the presence of Latin American music in media.
Objectives:	On completion of this subject students should be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # Aurally analyse different expressions of Latin American music according to their musical characteristics and be able to situate them in their socio-historical context. # Discriminate between different Latin American musical traditions and be able to support your opinion with relevant musical evidence # Articulate historical, social and musical data in coherent narratives applying an adequate technical and scholarly vocabulary # Evaluate and criticise mainstream representations of Latin American music # Engage critically with the relevant literature in the field of Latin American music studies
Assessment:	Two 20 minute listening tests in weeks 6 and 11 (10% each), one 15 minute group oral class presentation plus 500 word summary (20%) in the second half of the semester, an essay of 2500 words, due at end of semester (50%), attendance and class participation (10%)
