Subject Overview:	This subject deals with the materials and structures crucial to the contemporary composer. They include a comprehensive and practical knowledge of instruments (including voice types) and instrumentation and an awareness of compositional devices which allow the composer to develop ideas beyond the embryonic stage of concepts/ideas. The subject will then embrace a detailed study of relevant works as well as trialing new works in order to ensure that a solid base is achieved so that the creative ideas can be applied practically.
Objectives:	On completion of this subject students should have acquired <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li># a sound practical knowledge of current instruments in use, instrumentation and methods of orchestration;</li> <li># a sound knowledge of current compositional devices in use and the ability to see these devices in an historical context and as a basis for developing original material;</li> <li># the ability to develop compositions which demonstrate both a knowledge of the past and the creative capacity to develop original material;</li> <li># the incentive to look backwards and forwards artistically in order to keep a reasonable perspective in terms of how an original work is new rather than a replication.</li> </ul>
Assessment:	Continuous: Preparation and commitment as demonstrated by performance tasks and/or a regularly updated journal of activities embracing all areas studied (50%) - Hurdle requirement 80% attendance. Formal: A notated composition of approximately 10 minutes duration which relates to material studied in the subject (50%).
