Subject Overview:	This subject examines international contemporary artistic practice. Through case studies of specific artworks students will be introduced to the theories that informed, shaped or were employed by critics and curators in recent decades. A broad variety of media will be considered, including painting, sculpture, installation, performance, photography, video and multimedia technologies. Students may explore issues such as: the relationship of regional and global cultures, the diversity of identities within contemporary culture, the growing awareness of the art of minority groups, the impact of new technologies, media forms and ideologies on culture, and the impact of globalisation on networks of exhibitions, artists and curators. Artists' responses to social debate on issues such as race relations, immigration, the environment, censorship, republicanism, and gay and lesbian politics will be considered. In addition, changes in the infrastructure and institutions of the culture industry - galleries, museums, publishing and media - may be examined.
Objectives:	Students who complete this subject will: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # understand key issues in artistic and critical practice in contemporary art; # have the ability to locate specific artistic and critical practices with a social, historical and theoretical context; # have developed an understanding of the relevance of various models of cultural analysis to the understanding of specific instances of cultural practices; # have the ability to conduct independent research using catalogued sources and bibliographical indexes.
