Subject Overview:	In order to be inhabited, Australia had first to be named, mapped, imagined and thereby invented. From this process of invention, a new poetics emerged enmeshed in a complex raft of inter-subjective and intercultural dialogue and conflict. Drawing on key Australian literary texts we will explore how successive writers have engaged with the new - inter-racial, environmental, social and sexual dynamics of the emerging culture. Themes to explore include narratives of domicile and domicile, exile and incarceration, tropes of the unbound house, of a 'scribbling' nature, a haunted earth, and of broken mirrors.
Objectives:	Students who successfully complete this subject will: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # be familiar with key Australian literary texts and with central issues in current debates about Australian colonial and post-colonial history; # have been introduced to key concepts in contemporary literary and critical theory; # have developed an increased awareness of argumentative and analytical practices which can be used to develop their own writing.
Assessment:	One class paper of 1000 words 25% (due during the semester) and one essay of 3000 words 75% (due at the end of the semester). This subject has a minimum hurdle requirement of 75% attendance and regular participation in tutorials are required. Assessment submitted late without an approved extension will be penalised at 10% per day. In-class tasks missed without approval will not be marked. All pieces of written work must be submitted to pass this subject.
