Subject Overview:	This subject addresses new writing, presentation, and actions referred to as Live Art. It draws on the emergence of performance in the 1960s that brought visual arts and performance together in a new form of artistic practice. Students will study how performance art and its practitioners, combined the liveness of theatre with the duration of artistic display and interdisciplinary practices to challenge the institutional nature of theatre culture. Live Art Beyond Theatre investigates forms of theatre that subvert aesthetic norms and engage in cultural critique.
