Subject Overview:	This subject addresses the need for law graduates to have experience in, and be comfortable dealing with, legal problems that cross national boundaries, legal systems and legal cultures. Whether law graduates are looking to work in commercial law, intellectual property, taxation, human rights law, labour law or any other field, international and transnational law will be an essential aspect of their work. The Centre for Transnational Legal Studies (CTLS) is a joint venture of leading global law schools, coordinated by Georgetown University's Law Center. From September 2008 it will teach semester length programmes in transnational legal studies in the heart of London's legal quarter. The programme will bring together faculty and students from several of the world's top law schools to study transnational legal issues in a multicultural and transnational setting. Melbourne Law School students may attend the Centre for an intensive semester focussed on transnational, international and comparative law, generally in their final year/s of study. Each year, the programme will be taught by faculty from each of the law school involved in the CTLS, including Free University of Berlin, the University of Fribourg, the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, King's College London, the University of Melbourne, the National University of Singapore, the University of Sao Paolo, the University of Torino, and the University of Toronto.

	Students will be drawn from these universities and others, providing a richly diverse student body. Melbourne Law School LLB students will undertake a core course focused on transnational legal theory and three optional subjects from the suite of subjects on offer. Several classes will be co-taught by professors from different countries, to facilitate comparative analysis and discussion. The programme will also include a weekly workshop featuring some of the world's leading scholars and practitioners of international, transnational and comparative law, and a participatory exercise to introduce students to each other and to the different perspectives that they bring to the Center. Subjects that are expected to be taught in Fall 2008 (Melbourne's semester 2, 2008) include the Law of Work in the Global Economy, Transnational Issues in Art, Culture &amp; Law, The Theory and Practice of Copyright Law; Comparative and Transnational Aspects, International Investment Law, Globalization, Governance &amp; Justice and Contract Theory in Comparative Perspective.
Objectives:	A candidate who has successfully completed this suite of subjects will be exposed to the following concepts: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li># Understand the relationship between international institutions and international law;</li> <li># Have a detailed knowledge of a range of international institutions and the legal issues they face;</li> <li># Understand the role of different actors within international institutions and how various institutions relate to each other;</li> <li># Be familiar with key factors influencing international institutions from the perspective of law, policy, politics, diplomacy, and management.</li> </ul>
Assessment:	Each subject taught in the CTLS programme will have an individual assessment regime. The Law School will be in a position to advise when assessment details are made available.
Prescribed Texts:	None - students may be required to purchase texts relating to individual areas of study.
Breadth Options:	This subject is not available as a breadth subject.
