Subject Overview:	Please note: this subject is currently closed and MCCP is not accepting enrolments. The last intake into this subject was Sem 2, 2010.  Recent new thinking about chain systems and supply chains provides important insights into issues of the integration of chains. This unit explores, among other things, the work of Andrew Cox on power relationships in supply chains, the notion of virtual supply chains and the networked economy in the work of Reddy and Reddy and others. The unit also uses one or a number of purpose-designed, objectanimated, interactive simulation packages to demonstrate the drivers of integration and the dynamic determinants of capacity in supply chains. It also uses real-world case studies to demonstrate a range of important principles of integration.
Objectives:	The subject objectives are to provide students with <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Management skills for effective operations in advanced chain systems</li> <li>• Skills in managing complex integrated systems</li> <li>• Understanding ways and means of trading off efficiency and costs to deliver customer value</li> <li>• Skills to operate effectively within difficult policy scenarios</li> <li>• Understanding of the variability of demand and robustness in supply chains</li> <li>• Understanding of process mapping and dynamic modeling solutions for efficient chains</li> </ul>
Assessment:	Seminar presentation – written report (600 words) – 10 percent Group syndicate work and presentation of findings (1000 words) – 40 percent (group mark) A research report (4000 words) – 50 percent
