Subject Overview:	This subject develops teacher candidates' understanding of the place of this learning area in contemporary goals of school in Australia and in the Victorian curriculum in particular. By considering the principles of learning and teaching that underpin effective classrooms and the research that supports these principles, this subject will widen teacher candidates' appreciation of exemplary teaching in this area. Teacher candidates will examine child development in music and the psychological foundations of musical behaviour which, in turn, will inform their planning for music education in the classroom. They will become familiar with a range processes for developing composing, performing and listening abilities and how these processes support the implementation of current curriculum and assessment policies. Students will also examine the nature of diversity in the music classroom.
