Subject Overview:	This subject examines the relationship between language and society in Europe, including Scandinavia. It focuses on issues of relevance in an increasingly integrated Europe in which European and other languages are in contact through migration, travel, business, and mass media, and in which English is taking on an important role as a lingua franca. The topics to be covered include: the relationship between majority and minority languages, dialects and the standard language; bilingualism and multilingualism; semi-communication; language planning at state and European levels; politeness and forms of address; and the status and influence of English.
Objectives:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> # have a greater understanding of multilingual societies and the relationship between minority and majority languages. # be able to critically appraise the role of English as a lingua franca in a European context. # have gained insights into particular linguistic phenomena from cross-cultural and cross-linguistic perspectives. # have increased their awareness of language planning issues at a societal level, both within state boundaries and the European Union.

Assessment:	A 10-15 minute class presentation during semester (equivalent to 1,000 words) 25%; a mid-semester test (equivalent to 1,000 words) 25%; an essay of 2,000 words 50% (due at the end of semester).
