Subject Overview:	As the culminating experience of the history major, Making History provides a bridge between the undergraduate experience and professional practice. The subject will firstly draw together a range of topics in the theory and practice of the discipline. Archival research will be a core element of student project work. An emphasis will be placed on the practice of history in the community beyond the classroom, and on the role of the historian in civic engagement and action. Students will complete a research task in which the topics and thematic or geographical focus may vary from year to year.
Objectives:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li># understand key concepts in the development of history as a discipline and its internal debates, preoccupations and contestations</li> <li># develop a greater understanding of the possible uses and abuses of historical knowledge in the world</li> </ul>
Assessment:	A 500 word exercise 15% (due Week 4), an archives project of 1000 words, 25% (due mid-semester), and a research project equivalent to 2500 words, 60% (due at the end of semester). Hurdle requirement: students must attend a minimum of 75% of tutorials in order to pass this subject. Assessment submitted late without an approved extension will be penalised at 10% per day; after five working days, no late assessment will be marked. In-class tasks missed without approval will not be marked. All pieces of written work must be submitted to pass this subject.
