Subject Overview:	This subject focuses on the transforming power of communicative technology in social history, with specific empirical reference to modern Indonesia. Students will closely examine the profound social transformation brought about by literacy and mass print - one of the most important information technologies in human history - in functionally less-literate communities at a time of global invasion of electronic high technology. Nationalism, democratisation, popular cultures and social identities will be some of the key issues in the subject.
Objectives:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> # be well-informed of selected features and issues pertaining to Indonesia's contemporary mass media. # should be able to discuss, with some theoretical reference, the dialectics of social change and media technology in Indonesia. # be able to identify for further research the prominent potentials and challenges of Indonesia's mass media.
Assessment:	Oral presentation for class discussion 10% (during the semester), one short essay of 750 words 20% (due one week after class seminar for individual student), ongoing class participation 10%, one short essay of 750 words for 20% (due mid-semester) and one long essay of 2500 words 40% (due during the examination period). Class attendance is required for this subject; if you do not attend a minimum of 75% of classes without an approved exemption you will not be eligible for a pass in this subject. Assessment submitted late without an approved extension will be penalised at 10% per day. In-class tasks missed without approval will not be marked.
