Subject Overview:	This subject will be taught as part of a wider collaboration with the University of Michigan's Program in Refugee and Asylum Law. Specifically, it will provide the opportunity for Melbourne Law School students to work on the Michigan Guidelines project - an innovative, internationally recognised project on cutting-edge issues in international refugee law. Every second year, the University of Michigan's Program in Refugee and Asylum Law hosts a Colloquium on Challenges in International Refugee Law in which leading academic experts are invited to Ann Arbor in order to develop an intellectual framework for resolution of a significant problem facing international refugee law. The purpose of the Colloquium is to tackle a single, cutting-edge concern via preparatory study and a two-day debate and policy formulation meeting. Students are actively involved in the drafting of background research for the meeting, and participate as colleagues with the invited experts. There have been four colloquia to date, resulting in four sets of Michigan Guidelines on Challenges in International Refugee law. The Michigan Guidelines have been cited and applied by courts around the world. The Guidelines can be found at http://www.law.umich.edu/CentersAndPrograms/pral/guidelines.htm In this seminar course, Melbourne students will work with Dr Michelle Foster to prepare the background paper for the 5th Colloquium on Challenges in International Refugee Law to be held in Ann Arbor in November 2008. This will involve in-depth collaborative research on an important and cutting-edge issue in international refugee law. The background report will form the basis for discussion at the 5 th Colloquium. (There will be an opportunity for 4-6 students in this subject to attend the Colloquium in Ann Arbor October/November 2008. Some funding may be available from the Law School).
Objectives:	A student who has successfully completed the subject should: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li># Have a knowledge of the different international instruments governing refugee law at the international level;</li> <li># Understand the key controversies in interpreting the 1951 Refugee Convention;</li> <li># Understand the way in which international refugee law interacts with the Australian domestic legal system;</li> <li># Understand how comparative material may be used in refugee cases in Australia;</li> <li># Be able to undertake research in refugee law;</li> </ul>
