Subject Overview:	Equitable doctrines and remedies have become increasingly important to commercial conduct and transactions over recent years. Their impact has not only been reflected in a host of judicial decisions that have developed significantly the law affecting commercial dealings, but in the raft of legislation that now builds on those equitable foundations. This subject considers some of the more pressing points of convergence between equitable doctrine and commercial practice, and examines their ongoing relationship with key statutory counterparts. In doing so, the subject is tightly structured to ensure that students are both exposed to cutting-edge legal theory concerning court-led equitable developments and to the practical ramifications of those developments for commercial practice and transactions. Principal topics will include: # The role of equity in commercial transactions

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> # The nature of the fiduciary obligations, including the avoidance of conflicts of interest and the duty not to profit from a fiduciary position # 'Management' and avoidance of fiduciary conflicts # Undue influence and related doctrines in banking contexts # Quistclose trusts # The role of estoppel in commercial negotiations # Equitable remedies for breach of obligation, with special reference to gain-based awards and constructive and resulting trusts.
Objectives:	A student who has successfully completed this subject should: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # Understand the relevance of equitable doctrines and remedies to modern commercial transactions # Understand the interaction of equity and statute in resolving commercial disputes # Be aware of the discretionary considerations that inform the application of doctrines and the award of equitable remedies # Appreciate the potential for further development in equitable doctrines and remedies.
