Subject Overview:	The Media and Communications Research Project provides students with an opportunity to conduct an extensive analysis of any form of media output, theoretical framework, institutional structure, or mode of reception. Students will deploy, and reflect upon, their selected method/s of analysis and present their findings in a written report. They will be offered guidance throughout the process of conceiving, designing, executing and writing their report. The final written presentation should aim to produce a critical evaluation of the topic with reference to relevant positions of theory and debate, the methods and methodology deployed, as well as their own research practice. On completion of this subject, students will have gained critical insight into their chosen topic, as well as a deeper understanding of the processes, stages and methodological requirements for undertaking successful research in the field of Media and Communications.
Objectives:	Students who complete this subject will: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # be able to design, research and present in writing a sustained academic study; # be able to demonstrate awareness of relevant literature in the field of media and communication in relation to a chosen topic of inquiry; # be able to marshal argument and evidence in a structured narrative and sequence of chapters according to scholarly practice; # be able to critically engage with relevant theoretical frameworks and debates, and reflect upon issues of methodology where appropriate.
Assessment:	An 8000-word research project 100% (due at the end of semester). Students must attend all scheduled classes for this subject in order to submit final assessment. Assessment submitted late without an approved extension will be penalised at 10% per day. All pieces of written work must be submitted to pass this subject.
