Subject Overview:	Many of the most important social and political issues confronting 21st century Australia generate ethical controversies. What are our obligations to the environment and to future generations? Are there limits we ought to respect with regard to the creation and destruction of life? How should wealth be distributed? Does the application of our scientific knowledge put important social goods at risk? This subject will provide a way of making sense of these controversies: it will discuss a number of particular issues, possibly including the status of mental illness, abortion, genetic screening and modification, euthanasia, global warming and the responsibilities of corporations.
Objectives:	Students who successfully complete this subject will # be familiar with the philosophical debate on selected topics in applied ethics.

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> # understand the way in which philosophical reasoning can be applied to controversies in applied ethics. # have demonstrated the ability to think and write clearly on selected topics in applied ethics.
Assessment:	A written assignment of 2000 words 50% (due mid-semester), a 2-hour written examination 50% (at the end of semester). Hurdle Requirements: This subject has a minimum hurdle requirement of 75% tutorial attendance. Regular participation in tutorials is required. Assessment submitted late without an approved extension will be penalised at 10% per day. After 5 working days late assessment will not be marked. In-class tasks missed without approval will not be marked. All pieces of written work must be submitted to pass this subject
Prescribed Texts:	A subject reader will be available at the start of semester.
