ANCW30019 Greek Pre-history, 3000-1000 BCE

Dates & Locations: This subject is not offered in 2013. Time Commitment: Contact Hours: A 1.5-hour lecture per week and a 1 hour tutorial for 11 weeks. Total Time Commitment: 8.5 hours per week. Total of 102 hours per week. None. Recommended Background Knowledge: None. None. Requirements: Solpiect Standards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this subject are articulated in the Subject Description, Subject Objectives, Generic Skills and Assessment Requirements of this entry. The University is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements for this control to the disability support scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http://www.services.unmelb.edu.au/disability. Contact: A/Prof Louise Hitchcock (http://classics-archaeology.unimelb.edu.au/about/staff/ hitchcock.html) Iahi@unimelb.edu.au (mailto:lahi@unimelb.edu.au) Subject Overview: This subject introduces students to the emergence of the great Bronze Age civilizations that preceded the Greek City-state as described by Homer: Minoan Crete and Mycenaean Greece, as well as the urban society on Thora, the Pompeii of the ancient Aegean. Students will be introduced to the emergence and collapse of these complex societies as understood through funerary customs, the local and international trade in luxury goods, the emergence of the earliest Greek witting, the interpretation of religious practices, the symbolic landscape, the role of art and monumental architecture in the construction of power, gender, and ethnic identity. Because these cultures are known primarily through material culture, the history of excavation practice and problems of interpretation are also considered. Students who successfully complete this subject will: # be able to demonstrate familiarity with the civilizations of prehistoric Greece. # demonstrate understanding of trade and internations of prompts society in Greece. # demonstrate understanding of trade and internati	Credit Points:	12.50
Time Commitment: Contact Hours: A 1.5-hour lecture per week and a 1 hour tutorial for 11 weeks. Total Time Commitment: 8.5 hours per week. Total of 102 hours per week. None. None. None. None. Recommended Background Knowledge: None. None. None. None Participation Requirements: Slandards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this subject are articulated in the Subject Description, Subject Objectives, Generic Skills and Assessment Requirements. Further details on the disability upon a Scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http://www.services.unimelb.edu.au/disability/ Waw.services.unimelb.edu.au/disability/ Contact: A/Prof Louise Hitchcock (http://classics-archaeology.unimelb.edu.au/about/staff/ hitchcock.html) Iahi@unimelb.edu.au (mailto:lahi@unimelb.edu.au) Subject Overview: This subject introduces students to the emergence of the great Bronze Age civilizations that preceded the Greek city-state as described by Homer: Minoan Crote and Mycenaean Greece, as well as the urban society on Thera, the Pompeii of the ancient Aegean. Students will be introduced to the emergence and collapse of these complex socielies as understood through funerary customs, the local and international trade in luxury goods, the emergence of the earliest Greek writing, the interpretation of religious practices. the symbolic landscape, the role of art and monumental architecture in the construction of power, gender, and ethnic identity. Because these cultures are known primarily through material culture, the history of excavation practice and problems of interpretation are also considered. Objectives: Students who successfully complete this subject will: ### be able to demonstrate familiarity with the civilizations of prehistoric Greece. ### have an understanding of the geography and chronology prehistoric Greece. #### have an understanding of trade and internations between Greece and the Near East. #### have an understanding o	Level:	3 (Undergraduate)
Cornequisites: None. None. Recommended Background Knowledge: Non Altowed Subjects: None For the purposes of considering request for Reasonable Adjustments under the disability Standards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this subject are articulated in the Subject Description, Subject Objectives, Generic Skills and Assessment Requirements of this entry. The University is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements. Further details on the disability support so theme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http://www.services.unimelb.edu.au/disability/ Contact: A/Prof Louise Hitchcock (http://classics-archaeology.unimelb.edu.au/about/staff/ hitchcock.html) lahi@unimelb.edu.au (malito:lahi@unimelb.edu.au) Subject Overview: This subject introduces students to the emergence of the great Bronze Age civilizations that preceded the Greek city-state as described by Homer: Minoan Crete and Mycenaean Greece, as well as the urban society on Thera, the Pompeii of the ancient Aegean. Students will be introduced to the emergence and collapse of these complex societies as understood through funerary customs, the local and international trade in luxury goods, the emergence of the adilest Greek writing, the interpretation or feligious practices, the symbolic landscape, the role of art and monumental architecture in the construction of power, gender, and ethnic identity. Because these cultures are known primarily through material culture, the history of excavation practice and problems of interpretation are also considered. Objectives: Students who successfully complete this subject will: # be able to demonstrate familiarity with the civilizations of prehistoric Greece. # have an understanding of the geography and chronology prehistoric Greece. # alway an understanding of the geography and chronology prehistoric Greece. # demonstrate understanding of rise and collapse of complex society in Greece. Assessment:	Dates & Locations:	This subject is not offered in 2013.
Corequisites: None. Recommended Background Knowledge: None None None None None None None None	Time Commitment:
None. None Allowed Subjects: None Participation Requirements: For the purposes of considering request for Reasonable Adjustments under the disability Standards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this subject are articulated in the Subject Description, Subject Objectives, Generic Skills and Assessment Requirements of this entry. The University is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements. Further details on the disability support scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http://www.services.unimelb.edu.au/disability/ Contact: A/Prof Louise Hitchcock (http://classics-archaeology.unimelb.edu.au/dabout/staff/ hitchcock.html) Iahl@unimelb.edu.au (mailto:lahl@unimelb.edu.au) Subject Overview: This subject introduces students to the emergence of the great Bronze Age civilizations that preceded the Greek city-state as described by Homer: Minoan Crete and Mycenaean Greece, as well as the urban society on Thera, the Pompeli of the ancient Aegean. Students will be introduced to the emergence of the seconplex societies as understood through funerary customs, the local and international trade in luxury goods, the emergence of the earliest Greek writing, the interpretation of religious practices, the symbolic landscape, the role of art and monumental architecture in the construction of power, gender, and ethnic identity. Because these cultures are known primarily through material culture, the history of excavation practice and problems of interpretation are also considered. Students who successfully complete this subject will: ### be able to demonstrate familiarity with the civilizations of prehistoric Greece. ### have an understanding of trade and interactions between Greece and the Near East. ### have an understanding of trade and interactions between Greece and the Near East. ### have an understanding of trade and interactions between Greece and the Near East. ### have an understanding of trade a	Prerequisites:	None.
None Allowed Subjects: None For the purposes of considering request for Reasonable Adjustments under the disability Standards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this subject are articulated in the Subject Description, Subject Objectives, Generic Skills and Assessment Requirements of this entry. The University is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements of this entry. The University is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements. Further details on the disability support scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http://www.services.unimelb.edu.au/disability/ Contact: Afrof Louise Hitchcock (http://classics-archaeology.unimelb.edu.au/about/staff/ hitchcock.html) lahi@unimelb.edu.au (mailto:lahi@unimelb.edu.au) Subject Overview: This subject introduces students to the emergence of the great Bronze Age civilizations that preceded the Greek city-state as described by Homer: Minoan Crete and Mycenaean Greece, as well as the urban society on Thera, the Pompeli of the ancient Aegean. Students will be introduced to the emergence and collapse of these complex societies as understood through funerary customs, the local and international trade in luxury goods, the emergence of the earliest Greek writing, the interpretation of religious practices, the symboli andscape, the role of art and monumental architecture in the construction of power, gender, and ethnic identity. Because these cultures are known primarily through material culture, the history of excavation practice and problems of interpretation are also considered. Students who successfully complete this subject will: # be able to demonstrate familiarity with the civilizations of prehistoric Greece. # have an understanding of trade and interactions between Greece and the Near East. # have an understanding of trade and interactions between Greece and the Near East. # have an understanding of rise and collapse of complex so	Corequisites:	None.
Core Participation Requirements: For the purposes of considering request for Reasonable Adjustments under the disability Standards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this subject are articulated in the Subject Description, Subject Objectives, Generic Skills and Assessment Requirements of this entry. The University is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements. Further details on the disability support scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http:// www.services.unimelb.edu.au/disability/ Contact: APProf Louise Hitchcock (http://classics-archaeology.unimelb.edu.au/about/staff/ hitchcock.html) lahi@unimelb.edu.au (mailto:lahi@unimelb.edu.au) Subject Overview: This subject introduces students to the emergence of the great Bronze Age civilizations that preceded the Greek city-state as described by Homer. Minoan Crete and Mycenaean Greece, as well as the urban society on Thera, the Pompeii of the ancient Aegean. Students will be introduced to the emergence and collapse of these complex societies as understood through funerary customs, the local and international trade in luxury goods, the emergence of the earliest Greek writing, the interpretation of religious practices, the symbolic landscape, the role of at and monumental architecture in the construction of power, gender, and ethnic identity, Because these cultures are known primarily through material culture, the history of excavation practice and problems of interpretation are also considered. Students who successfully complete this subject will: # be able to demonstrate familiarity with the civilizations of prehistoric Greece. # have an understanding of trade and interactions between Greece and the Near East. # have an understanding of the geography and chronology prehistoric Greece. # demonstrate understanding of rise and collapse of complex society in Greece. # demonstrate understanding of rise and collapse of complex society in Greece		None.
Standards for Education (Cwth*2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this subject are articulated in the Subject Description, Subject Objectives, Generic Skills and Assessment Requirements of this entry. The University is declicated to provide support to those with special requirements. Further details on the disability support scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http://www.services.unimelb.edu.au/disability/ Contact: A/Prof Louise Hitchcock (http://classics-archaeology.unimelb.edu.au/about/staff/hitchcock.html) Iahi@unimelb.edu.au (mailto:lahi@unimelb.edu.au) Subject Overview: This subject introduces students to the emergence of the great Bronze Age civilizations that preceded the Greek city-state as described by Homer: Minoan Crete and Mycenaean Greece, as well as the urban society on Thera, the Pompeli of the ancient Aegean. Students will be introduced to the emergence and collapse of these complex societies as understood through funerary customs, the local and international trade in luxury goods, the emergence of the earliest Greek writing, the interpretation of religious practices, the symbolic landscape, the role of art and monumental architecture in the construction of power, gender, and ethnic identity. Because these cultures are known primarily through material culture, the history of excavation practice and problems of interpretation are also considered. Students who successfully complete this subject will: # be able to demonstrate familiarity with the civilizations of prehistoric Greece. # have an understanding of trade and interactions between Greece and the Near East. # have an understanding of the geography and chronology prehistoric Greece. # demonstrate understanding of rise and collapse of complex society in Greece. Assessment: A journal assignment of 250 words 10% (due week 3 of semester), a class paper/essay of 2000 words (including a 7-10 minute presentation) 45% (presentations during semester, and papers d	Non Allowed Subjects:	None
A/Prof Louise Hitchcock (http://classics-archaeology.unimelb.edu.au/about/statt/hitchcock.html) Iahi@unimelb.edu.au (mailto:lahi@unimelb.edu.au) This subject introduces students to the emergence of the great Bronze Age civilizations that preceded the Greek city-state as described by Homer: Minoan Crete and Mycenaean Greece, as well as the urban society on Thera, the Pompeii of the ancient Aegean. Students will be introduced to the emergence and collapse of these complex societies as understood through funerary customs, the local and international trade in luxury goods, the emergence of the earliest Greek writing, the interpretation of religious practices, the symbolic landscape, the role of art and monumental architecture in the construction of power, gender, and ethnic identity. Because these cultures are known primarily through material culture, the history of excavation practice and problems of interpretation are also considered. Students who successfully complete this subject will: # be able to demonstrate familiarity with the civilizations of prehistoric Greece. # have an understanding of trade and interactions between Greece and the Near East. # have an understanding of trade and interactions between Greece and the Near East. # have an understanding of trade and interactions between Greece and the Near East. # have an understanding of rise and collapse of complex society in Greece. A journal assignment of 250 words 10% (due week 3 of semester), a class paper/essay of 2000 words (including a 7-10 minute presentation) 45% (presentations during semester, and papers due at end of semester), a take-home examination of 1750 words 35% (due during the examination period), and tutorial participation 10% (throughout the semester). Hurdle requirement: students must attend a minimum of 75% of tutorials in order to pass this subject. Assessment submitted late without an approved extension will be penalised at 10% per day; after five working days, no late assessment will be marked. In-class tasks		Standards for Education (Cwth 2005), and Students Experiencing Academic Disadvantage Policy, academic requirements for this subject are articulated in the Subject Description, Subject Objectives, Generic Skills and Assessment Requirements of this entry. The University is dedicated to provide support to those with special requirements. Further details on the disability support scheme can be found at the Disability Liaison Unit website: http:// preceded the Greek city-state as described by Homer: Minoan Crete and Mycenaean Greece, as well as the urban society on Thera, the Pompeii of the ancient Aegean. Students will be introduced to the emergence and collapse of these complex societies as understood through funerary customs, the local and international trade in luxury goods, the emergence of the earliest Greek writing, the interpretation of religious practices, the symbolic landscape, the role of art and monumental architecture in the construction of power, gender, and ethnic identity. Because these cultures are known primarily through material culture, the history of excavation practice and problems of interpretation are also considered. Students who successfully complete this subject will: # be able to demonstrate familiarity with the civilizations of prehistoric Greece. # have an understanding of trade and interactions between Greece and the Near East. # have an understanding of the geography and chronology prehistoric Greece. # demonstrate understanding of rise and collapse of complex society in Greece. A journal assignment of 250 words 10% (due week 3 of semester), a class paper/essay of 2000 words (including a 7-10 minute presentation) 45% (presentations during semester, and papers due at end of semester), a take-home examination of 1750 words 35% (due during the examination period), and tutorial participation 10% (throughout the semester). Hurdle requirement: students must attend a minimum of 75% of tutorials in order to pass this subject. Assessment submitted late without an approved extension will be penalised at 10% per day; after five working days, no late assessment will be marked. In-class tasks missed without approval will not be marked. All pieces of written work must be submitted to pass this subject. Prescribed Texts: D. Preziosi & L. Hitchcock. Aegean Art and Architecture, Oxford, 1999. An online course reader	Contact:	hitchcock.html)
be able to demonstrate familiarity with the civilizations of prehistoric Greece. # have an understanding of trade and interactions between Greece and the Near East. # have an understanding of the geography and chronology prehistoric Greece. # demonstrate understanding of rise and collapse of complex society in Greece. # demonstrate understanding of rise and collapse of complex society in Greece. A journal assignment of 250 words 10% (due week 3 of semester), a class paper/essay of 2000 words (including a 7-10 minute presentation) 45% (presentations during semester, and papers due at end of semester), a take-home examination of 1750 words 35% (due during the examination period), and tutorial participation 10% (throughout the semester). Hurdle requirement: students must attend a minimum of 75% of tutorials in order to pass this subject. Assessment submitted late without an approved extension will be penalised at 10% per day; after five working days, no late assessment will be marked. In-class tasks missed without approval will not be marked. All pieces of written work must be submitted to pass this subject. Prescribed Texts: D. Preziosi & L. Hitchcock. Aegean Art and Architecture, Oxford, 1999. An online course reader	Subject Overview:	preceded the Greek city-state as described by Homer: Minoan Crete and Mycenaean Greece, as well as the urban society on Thera, the Pompeii of the ancient Aegean. Students will be introduced to the emergence and collapse of these complex societies as understood through funerary customs, the local and international trade in luxury goods, the emergence of the earliest Greek writing, the interpretation of religious practices, the symbolic landscape, the role of art and monumental architecture in the construction of power, gender, and ethnic identity. Because these cultures are known primarily through material culture, the history of excavation # be able to demonstrate familiarity with the civilizations of prehistoric Greece. # have an understanding of trade and interactions between Greece and the Near East. # have an understanding of the geography and chronology prehistoric Greece. # demonstrate understanding of rise and collapse of complex society in Greece. # demonstrate understanding of rise and collapse of complex society in Greece. A journal assignment of 250 words 10% (due week 3 of semester), a class paper/essay of 2000 words (including a 7-10 minute presentation) 45% (presentations during semester, and papers due at end of semester), a take-home examination of 1750 words 35% (due during the examination period), and tutorial participation 10% (throughout the semester). Hurdle requirement: students must attend a minimum of 75% of tutorials in order to pass this subject. Assessment submitted late without an approved extension will be penalised at 10% per day; after five working days, no late assessment will be marked. In-class tasks missed without approval will not be marked. All pieces of written work must be submitted to pass this subject. Prescribed Texts: D. Preziosi & L. Hitchcock. Aegean Art and Architecture, Oxford, 1999. An online course reader	Objectives:	Students who successfully complete this subject will: # have an understanding of trade and interactions between Greece and the Near East. # have an understanding of the geography and chronology prehistoric Greece. # demonstrate understanding of rise and collapse of complex society in Greece. A journal assignment of 250 words 10% (due week 3 of semester), a class paper/essay of 2000 words (including a 7-10 minute presentation) 45% (presentations during semester, and papers due at end of semester), a take-home examination of 1750 words 35% (due during the examination period), and tutorial participation 10% (throughout the semester). Hurdle requirement: students must attend a minimum of 75% of tutorials in order to pass this subject. Assessment submitted late without an approved extension will be penalised at 10% per day; after five working days, no late assessment will be marked. In-class tasks missed without approval will not be marked. All pieces of written work must be submitted to pass this subject. Prescribed Texts: D. Preziosi & L. Hitchcock. Aegean Art and Architecture, Oxford, 1999. An online course reader # have an understanding of the geography and chronology prehistoric Greece. # demonstrate understanding of rise and collapse of complex society in Greece. A journal assignment of 250 words 10% (due week 3 of semester), a class paper/essay of 2000 words (including a 7-10 minute presentation) 45% (presentations during semester, and papers due at end of semester), a take-home examination of 1750 words 35% (due during the examination period), and tutorial participation 10% (throughout the semester). Hurdle requirement: students must attend a minimum of 75% of tutorials in order to pass this subject. Assessment submitted late without an approved extension will be penalised at 10% per day; after five working days, no late assessment will be marked. In-class tasks missed without approval will not be marked. All pieces of written work must be submitted to pass this subject. Prescribed Texts: D. Preziosi & L. Hitchcock. Aegean Art and Architecture, Oxford, 1999. An online course reader		" ·
Assessment: A journal assignment of 250 words 10% (due week 3 of semester), a class paper/essay of 2000 words (including a 7-10 minute presentation) 45% (presentations during semester, and papers due at end of semester), a take-home examination of 1750 words 35% (due during the examination period), and tutorial participation 10% (throughout the semester). Hurdle requirement: students must attend a minimum of 75% of tutorials in order to pass this subject. Assessment submitted late without an approved extension will be penalised at 10% per day; after five working days, no late assessment will be marked. In-class tasks missed without approval will not be marked. All pieces of written work must be submitted to pass this subject. Prescribed Texts: D. Preziosi & L. Hitchcock. Aegean Art and Architecture, Oxford, 1999. An online course reader		# have an understanding of the geography and chronology prehistoric Greece.
2000 words (including a 7-10 minute presentation) 45% (presentations during semester, and papers due at end of semester), a take-home examination of 1750 words 35% (due during the examination period), and tutorial participation 10% (throughout the semester). Hurdle requirement: students must attend a minimum of 75% of tutorials in order to pass this subject. Assessment submitted late without an approved extension will be penalised at 10% per day; after five working days, no late assessment will be marked. In-class tasks missed without approval will not be marked. All pieces of written work must be submitted to pass this subject. Prescribed Texts: D. Preziosi & L. Hitchcock. Aegean Art and Architecture, Oxford, 1999. An online course reader		# demonstrate understanding of rise and collapse of complex society in Greece.
	Assessment:	2000 words (including a 7-10 minute presentation) 45% (presentations during semester, and papers due at end of semester), a take-home examination of 1750 words 35% (due during the examination period), and tutorial participation 10% (throughout the semester). Hurdle requirement: students must attend a minimum of 75% of tutorials in order to pass this subject. Assessment submitted late without an approved extension will be penalised at 10% per day; after five working days, no late assessment will be marked. In-class tasks missed without
	Prescribed Texts:	D. Preziosi & L. Hitchcock. Aegean Art and Architecture, Oxford, 1999. An online course reader also available

Page 1 of 2 01/02/2017 7:02 P.M.

Breadth Options:	This subject potentially can be taken as a breadth subject component for the following courses: # Bachelor of Biomedicine (https://handbook.unimelb.edu.au/view/2013/B-BMED) # Bachelor of Commerce (https://handbook.unimelb.edu.au/view/2013/B-COM) # Bachelor of Environments (https://handbook.unimelb.edu.au/view/2013/B-ENVS) # Bachelor of Science (https://handbook.unimelb.edu.au/view/2013/B-SCI) # Bachelor of Engineering (https://handbook.unimelb.edu.au/view/2013/B-ENG) You should visit learn more about breadth subjects (http://breadth.unimelb.edu.au/breadth/info/index.html) and read the breadth requirements for your degree, and should discuss your choice with your student adviser, before deciding on your subjects.
Fees Information:	Subject EFTSL, Level, Discipline & Census Date, http://enrolment.unimelb.edu.au/fees
Generic Skills:	# Develop effective research skills # Develop effective communications skills # Develop critical thinking skills # Develop effective writing skills
Links to further information:	http://classics-archaeology.unimelb.edu.au/about/
Related Majors/Minors/ Specialisations:	Ancient World Studies Classical Studies and Archaeology Classical Studies and Archaeology
Related Breadth Track(s):	Ancient Greece Studies Archaeology

Page 2 of 2 01/02/2017 7:02 P.M.