Subject Overview:	This subject works along two fronts. It introduces some of the main genres of medieval literature (romance, fabliau, chivalric quest, and confessional narrative), with a special focus on the representation of love, sex and death in the Middle Ages, and on the works of Geoffrey Chaucer. It also examines the phenomenon of reviving or re-creating medieval culture in fiction, poetry and film, from the 16th century to the present, including works by Spenser, Tennyson and Tolkien, and the post-medieval traditions of fairy-tales. Extracts from Chaucer, and one or two other texts will be read in Middle English. Others will be read in modern translation.
Objectives:	On completion of the subject students should have: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # familiarity with some of the main genres of medieval literature; # a reading knowledge of Chaucerian English; # an understanding of the main trends in medievalism; # some familiarity with the critical traditions of reading medieval and medievalist literature.
Assessment:	One essay of 1500 words (40%), due mid-semester, and an essay of 2500 words (60%), due in the examination period. This subject has a minimum hurdle requirement of 75% attendance and regular participation in tutorials. Assessment submitted late without an approved extension will be penalised at 10% per day. In-class tasks missed without approval will not be marked. All pieces of written work must be submitted to pass this subject.
