Subject Overview:	Students will further consolidate their ability to communicate in German in oral and written discourse and develop cultural literacy in German by engaging with key themes in modern German-speaking societies such as: e.g. relationships and varieties of German language. Students will develop more advanced language skills through reading short newspaper and magazine articles and watching film and television clips. They will produce shorter texts of different types (eg. news reports, argumentative essays, reviews) and learn how to debate contemporary issues. Students will also gain an understanding of the principles of organizing language as well as developing proficiency in the use of the appropriate linguistic tools for the formation of situation-appropriate vocabulary, sentence and text structures. The Special Studies seminars give students the opportunity to develop topics of interest within the general areas of German literature, linguistics and culture. Students will be introduced to a variety of specialized terminology and should develop analytical skills relevant to the topic area.
Objectives:	At the end of this subject students will be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # use a greater range of vocabulary relating to contemporary German societies including specialised terminology in relation to literary, linguistic or cultural topics of their choice; # deploy more complex linguistic structures to speak and write about cultures and societies both past and present and to express opinions, desires and intentions; # interpret and analyse texts and genres of a moderate level of complexity in films, on television and in newspapers; # comprehend more formal spoken discourse of moderate complexity on a range of topics to do with contemporary life in German-speaking societies, including on a specialist topic of their choice; # develop a proficiency in writing forms of a moderate complexity and using analytical language on cultural and literary topics; # express themselves accurately and appropriately in formal and informal settings.
