Subject Overview:	The subject examines the relationship between the United States and the rest of the world in the 20th century. The subject explores America's rise to global power, the ideological foundations of U.S. foreign policy, and how, why, and with what effects the United States has exercised its power. We cover key events, including the two world wars, the Cold War, the Vietnam War, and CIA interventions in Latin America and the Middle East. We also explore different facets of American power - political, military, economic, and cultural. We look at whether the United States should be considered an "empire" and at the role of morality in foreign policy. A central aim is to understand the roots of American foreign policy today.
Objectives:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> # have a critical awareness of the contemporary and historical significance of U.S. interventions in and policies toward the rest of the world; # better understand the relationships between the formation of foreign policy and domestic public opinion in the United States; # have a general knowledge of the major events in, and stages of, the development of American foreign policy and an understanding of its cultural and social contexts within the United States.
Assessment:	A document-based essay, 1500 words (30%) (due at mid-semester), and a research essay, 2500 words (60%) (due at end of semester). Tutorial participation 10%. Hurdle requirements: students must attend a minimum of 75% of tutorials in order to pass this subject, as well as submit all pieces of written work and receive a passing mark (50 or higher) on the research essay. Assessment submitted late without an approved extension will be penalised at 10% per day; after five days, no late assessment will be accepted. In-class tasks missed without approval will not be marked.
Prescribed Texts:	Subject readings will be available online
