Subject Overview:	Students explore current issues in Indonesian society and further develop their linguistic abilities; topics covered may include democracy at work, religious disputes, other current events and a look at pre-independence Indonesia. These will be investigated through reading or viewing authentic material such as literary forms (e.g. short stories, poems) media reports, magazine articles, film & television clips. Students will undertake class discussions, presentations, essays and short translation exercises in order to consolidate linguistic resources gained in previous levels and develop a better understanding of complex and subtle language usage. At the end of this subject, students should have the linguistic resources necessary to begin tackling in-depth study of specific topics in professional and academic contexts using the Indonesian language.
Objectives:	On completion of this course students should be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # summarise and respond orally and in writing to key issues raised in prescribed texts; # write persuasive essays on topics relevant to the study of Indonesia; # translate short literary texts;

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> # identify, interpret and utilise figurative expressions appropriate to extended Indonesian texts; # develop a sound basis for further Indonesian language study.
Assessment:	Two essays, 750 words each 15% each (due early and late semester) 30%, 10-minute in-class oral presentation (mid-semester) 10%, one 500-word analytical essay in English (end of semester) 10%, 10-minute oral examination (during examination period) 10%, and a 2-hour written examination (during examination period) 40%. Class attendance is required for this subject; if you do not attend a minimum of 80% of classes without an approved exemption you will not be eligible for a pass in this subject. Assessment submitted late without an approved extension will be penalised at 10% per day. In-class tasks missed without approval will not be marked. All pieces of written work must be submitted to pass this subject.
