Subject Overview:	This subject will provide an understanding of the community sector and community development through a substantial volunteer experience. The aims of this subject are to enable you to undertake and report on a community-based project, gain significant insight into workplace issues, and further develop your employability skills in communication, planning and organisation, self-management and problem solving. The subject includes a placement of 80-100 hours with a not-for-profit organisation, offering an opportunity to contribute to a community through project work, research and/or engaging in the key activities of the organisation. The placement is supplemented by pre- and post-placement classes, including a compulsory induction in Week 1 and compulsory sessions in Weeks 2 &3, designed to prepare you for your placement, provide a theoretical framework of community development which will provide insight into the evolving needs of the community and the role of not-for-profit organisations in community development. The pre-placement seminars will also include self-assessment,

	reflexivity and professional skills. Students will have an opportunity to apply knowledge and skills acquired during their course to address issues of significance to a community and to enhance their understanding of approaches in the field of community/social development Students are responsible for identifying a suitable work placement, by Week 1 of semester, with support from Student Programs staff. In the semester prior to the placement, students should access Leadership, Involvement & Volunteer Experience (LIVE) http://www.services.unimelb.edu.au/live (http://www.services.unimelb.edu.au/live) resources to help identify potential host organisations and attend Careers & Employment (C&E) http://www.services.unimelb.edu.au/careers/ (http://www.services.unimelb.edu.au/careers/) seminars and workshops to assist when approaching host organisations. Students should commence approaching organisations, at least 4 weeks before the placement. More information is available in the Subject Guide. Placements must be approved by the Coordinator. Students experiencing problems finding a placement should contact the Course Coordinator. Upon subject completion, students will have completed a community project, gained insight into workplace issues and enhanced their employability skills. They will also have developed a critical understanding of the nature of citizenship and volunteering and the role of not-for-profit organisations in contemporary society. Through enrolment in this subject, students will develop skills as global citizens and leaders in communities and will contribute significantly to the community. Note: Students planning to take this subject in semester 2, 2013 will have the opportunity to work with the "Big Issue" organisation by participating in a national development competition to develop the next "Big Idea". Students will work in groups and participate in a program that includes, lectures, workshops and online seminars delivered by some of Australia's leading business and social enterprise experts. Students wishing to participate must attend a short compulsory lecture being held in semester 1, 2013. For further information about this exciting opportunity please send your expression of interest to arts-internships-info@unimelb.edu.au (mailto:arts-internships-info@unimelb.edu.au).
