Subject Overview:	This is a foundation subject for students intending to undertake honours or graduate research in ethnomusicology, or for students from other disciplines interested in the intellectual, historical and applied contexts of the study of the musics of the world. Discussion and seminars will centre on key issues –both historical and current - in ethnomusicology, including ethnographic representation, fieldwork methods, ethical issues in field research, and connecting musical analysis with cultural analysis. Students will be assisted to become “experts” in their own case study in an area of interest to them.
Objectives:	On completion of this subject students should be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # negotiate and assess the print and electronic literature in the discipline with confidence # articulate the main issues in ethnomusicology # demonstrate practical understanding of the ethics of scholarship in ethnomusicology # demonstrate understanding of different cultural values.
Assessment:	A case study (2000 words excluding bibliography/discography/filmography) due at the end of semester and a class presentation (50%); a 500 word ethnographic description of a performance of music in Melbourne due in week 9 (10%); a critical assessment of 1500 words of two ethnographies of music from the student's area of personal and research interest due in week 6 (40%).

Prescribed Texts:	A reading pack will be available for purchase from the Melbourne University Bookshop before the commencement of the semester.
