Subject Overview:	Through a detailed examination of one or more genres and one or more auteurs, this subject will address the historical importance of genre and the enduring notion of authorship to the production and reception of films, television programs and associated popular screen texts. The study of directors as well as Hollywood, mainstream and established genres will be central to this subject. The evolution of genres, however, and broader notions of authorship that take into account the significant role of producers, writers, stars, actors, studios, critics and audiences will also be studied as a major component of this subject.
Objectives:	On completion of the subject students should have: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # an understanding of the importance of genre and notions of the auteur to the production, critical and popular reception of films, television programs and other screen texts; # a fluency with the history and development and theories of genre and auteur criticism; # an understanding of the relationship between genres and auteurs, stars, studios and audiences and the relationship between films, television programs and other popular media texts.
Assessment:	A paper of 1000 words 40% (due during semester), a class presentation of 500 words 10% (during semester), an essay of 2500 words 50% (due in the examination period). This subject has a minimum hurdle requirement of 75% attendance and regular participation in tutorials. Assessment submitted late without an approved extension will be penalised at 10% per day. In-class tasks missed without approval will not be marked. All pieces of written work must be submitted to pass this subject.
Prescribed Texts:	A subject reader will be available.
