Overview:	Ancient Greek and Latin have been taught at the University of Melbourne since its very foundation, and have been a core element of higher education for many centuries. The overall objective of the Classics program is to introduce students to key literary texts from classical antiquity (including history, drama, oratory, philosophy, epic, and lyric poetry), and to enable students to discover the many important contributions which reading ancient texts in the original languages can make to understanding both the ancient world and the Western tradition. A knowledge of Ancient Greek and Latin is also very useful for research and training in such related disciplines as biochemistry, medicine, the history and philosophy of science, archaeology, Biblical studies, history, philosophy, art history, Romance language studies, English literary studies, and music. The Graduate Diploma in Arts with a specialization in Classics is a part-time course which provides students with the skills to read ancient texts in the original languages, and to interpret the ancient world and the classical tradition through its literature and linguistics. There is a focus on translation and textual analysis of literary texts, as well as vocabulary building, grammar, study of dialects, and advanced reading techniques within the ancient languages. The course can be completed as a pathway into Honours or Postgraduate Diploma in Classics or Ancient World Studies."
