Subject Overview:	This subject provides an opportunity for students to investigate, under supervision, an issue or approved topic of enquiry in the field of workplace planning or design with local relevance. The emphasis will be on relating the findings of a literature search of the topic with locally acquired information through site work and enquiry. Students will need to identify and present the issues and concerns of the case after pilot investigations, and then extend the investigation into the full scope required to complete the case study.
Learning Outcomes:	On successful completion of the subject, students should be able to conduct a scholarly enquiry into a topic or issue, and successfully report the findings to an informed audience.
Assessment:	A class presentation paper (1000 words) outlining the issues and concerns of the case - 20%; A final case study presented in writing (4000 words) and verbally to a panel - 80%.
