Subject Overview:	This subject introduces students to the emergence of the great Bronze Age civilizations that preceded the Greek city-state as described by Homer: Minoan Crete and Mycenaean Greece, as well as the urban society on Thera, the Pompeii of the ancient Aegean. Students will be introduced to the emergence and collapse of these complex societies as understood through funerary customs, the local and international trade in luxury goods, the emergence of the earliest Greek writing, the interpretation of religious practices, the symbolic landscape, the role of art and monumental architecture in the construction of power, gender, and ethnic identity. Because these cultures are known primarily through material culture, the history of excavation practice and problems of interpretation are also considered.
Learning Outcomes:	Students who successfully complete this subject will: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # be able to demonstrate familiarity with the civilizations of prehistoric Greece. # have an understanding of trade and interactions between Greece and the Near East. # have an understanding of the geography and chronology prehistoric Greece. # demonstrate understanding of rise and collapse of complex society in Greece.
