Subject Overview:	Contemporary organizations such as schools, to be effective, require the ability to adapt and transform their professional practice to respond to changing circumstances. An aspect of this transformation is the professional learning capacity of the organization and the leadership necessary to build and direct this . This subject builds on a number of concepts; professional knowledge and learning at the individual practitioner level and intellectual, cultural and social capital at the organisational and systemic levels. It develops a model of professional learning that involves five elements: (1) a shared commitment to the goals and outcomes of the learning activity, that is, a professional learning community; (2) role differentiation in terms of professional learning and distributed leadership of learning to achieve this; (3) an explicit model of how to learn professionally that is referenced on contemporary theories of knowledge enhancement and embedded in professional practice; (4) issues associated with contextualising the learning in particular school cultures, that is, the climate for professional learning; and (5) the extent to which autonomous, self managed and directed learning is possible in the professional community. The model will be applied to a range of issues confronting contemporary schools and educational provision. Approaches to distributed leadership, including middle leadership of professional learning, will be evaluated.
Learning Outcomes:	On completion of this subject students should be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li># critically analyse contemporary theories of professional learning in terms of current theories of learning and their relevance to understanding pedagogic improvement and school transformation,</li> <li># critically evaluate the model of professional learning in terms of these contemporary theories and identify its implications for pedagogic improvement and school transformation,</li> <li># develop and implement relevant assessment and diagnostic procedures, intervention and instructional procedures for enhancing professional learning that are supported by relevant current research,</li> <li># apply the model of professional learning to range of issues confront contemporary schools and educational provision, such as improved literacy learning.</li> </ul>

Assessment:	Satisfactory completion of two components: A critical examination ( review and analysis, approx 5, 000 words) of one or more aspects of the model of professional learning developed in lectures and its implications for leading change in schools. Application of the model of professional learning to an issue confronting a particular school improvement project (approximately 5, 000 words).
